Billion Dollar Steel Merger Held Invalid By Judge

APPEAL WILL BE FILED IN HIGH COURT

Decision Victory For Big Cleveland Financier Who Fought Steel Company

MOVE IS SURPRISE

Ruling Leaves Sheet, Tube Company Independent of Bethlehem Combination

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Dec. 29.—(UP)—The billion dollar Youngstown Sheet and Tube company-Bethlehem Steel Corporation merger which was ratified by Sheet and Tube shareholders last April, was held invalid by Common Pleas Judge David G. Jenkins today.

The decision was a victory for Cyrus S. Eaton, dynamic Cleveland financier and largest individual shareholder of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company. He had fought the consolidation on the ground that it was tinged with fraud and would result in losses of $50,000,000 to fellow stockholders. Eaton's original opposition to the consolidation was based on charges that the negotiations were conducted secretly by James M. Campbell, chairman of the board, and Frank Purnell, president of the Sheet and Tube, and Eugene G. Grace, president, and Charles M. Schwab, chairman of the board, of Bethlehem.

He and his associates amassed millions of dollars and threw them into a spectacular proxy fight but they met defeat when Sheet and Tube shareholders met and ratified the amalgamation by a majority of 58,000 votes. Eaton charged more than 100,000 shares of stock were voted illegally and immediately filed injunction suits to block the consolidation.

The suits were filed last spring. Hearings began in June and the trial was concluded in September. Final arguments were heard in October and the court's decision today was the climax.

The pro-merger forces are expected to file an immediate appeal. They intimate the decision would be carried to the United States supreme court if necessary.

The court's decision was wholly unexpected. There was no fanfare or preliminaries. Judge Jenkins walked into the courtroom at 8:25 a. m. He had prepared but three copies of his decision—a decision that holds in abeyance a consolidation that would have created a steel giant second only to the United States Steel corporation.

Not even the battery of attorneys who for months waged the legal phases of the battle of steel giants were informed in advance that the decision was ready.

New Consolidation

The ruling leaves Sheet and Tube an independent steel company, the goal for which Eaton and his associates fought. It also is believed to pave the way for consolidation with the Republic Steel Corporation, controlled by Eaton. This is known to be one of Eaton's fondest desires although he denied he harbored such plans during the long, arduous trial of the injunction suits.

ARMED REBELLION IN INDIA FEARED BY BRITISH HEADS

HEAVY SMUDGE NECESSARY TO AVOID DAMAGE

Temperatures Drop to 23 In Parts of County But Damage Is Slight

RESIDENTS of Santa Ana and other parts of Orange county were greeted this morning by an atmosphere that was as thick and murky as that of London and Pittsburgh combined as they faced the heavy blanket of smudge caused by firing of orchard heaters in the fight to protect citrus groves against the onslaughts of cold and frost. Although temperatures dropped as low as 23 and 24 in some parts of the county, according to reports today, very little damage is expected to result.

Fruit was frozen solid in a few localities, according to W. Wright, deputy agricultural commissioner, and some ice was found in fruit in other places, but county officials and packing house men are unanimous in voicing the belief that there will be very little loss to the growers as a result of the drop in temperature. Wright stated that temperatures as low as 23 and 24 degrees had been reported to his office from Garden Grove and Orange districts. County Farm Adviser Harold Wahlberg stated that the lowest in the Tustin district was 24-2 and that firing of orchard heaters started in that district about 11 p. m. last night. Wahlberg said today there was no damage done that his department knew of.

Wright declared that according to present weather forecasts no relief from the present cold snap can be expected until the rains arrive. He also pointed out that the present cold weather is not nearly so severe as that experienced in 1924 and that the temperatures did not stay down as long as they did in that year. The northern part of the county did not experience such low temperatures as the southern part, he said.

The official weather station at Orange, in charge of E. E. Campbell, recorded a low of 27 degrees, it was learned today.

Records maintained by the Santa Ana Growers association show that the mercury began to reach the danger point between 11 and 12 p. m. when reports from the various stations throughout the

$11,000 SECURED BY THEATER BANDIT

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—(UP)—A youthful bandit early today walked into the Paramount theater in the heart of Times Square, scooped up $11,000 from the treasurer's office and fled the point of a gun and escaped without being wounded. The bandit was seen by a large number of the audience from leaving the lobby.

As soon as the bandit had pocketed the money and departed from the treasurer's office, a clerk telephoned downstairs to have all the doors locked.

Despite a thorough search of the building and a close scrutiny of the audience by scores of police the bandit was not found.

North Dakota To Replace Capitol Destroyed by Fire

BISMARCK, N. D., Dec. 29.—(UP)—Departments of the North Dakota state government were taking up temporary quarters in halls, hotels, office and public buildings today while officials rushed plans for erection of a capitol to replace the historic structure which burned Sunday.

In the smoldering ruins of the old capitol were the ashes of documents and records which it had cost thousands of dollars to collect and many of which never can be replaced.

Firemen still were pumping water onto the wreckage of what was considered one of the finest buildings in the west at the time of its construction in 1894.

Hoover Wreath Placed On Tomb of Wilson

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29.—(UP)—A wreath from President Hoover lay on the tomb of Woodrow Wilson at Washington cathedral today with others placed there on the 74th anniversary of the birth of the war president.

At Staunton, Va., where Wilson was born 74 years ago yesterday, a memorial service to be addressed by Wilson's navy secretary, Josephus Daniels, will be held tonight.

On January 4, next, John H. Clarke, former associate justice of the U. S. Supreme Court, will speak at a memorial service in the National theater here.

CONDITION OF JOFFRE WORSE. REPORTS SHOW

French War Hero Lapses Into State of Coma and End Said Near

PARIS, Dec. 29.—(UP)—Marshal Joseph Joffre lapsed today into a state of coma late today shortly after his physicians had announced a further weakening in his condition.

The marshal, after rallying slightly earlier in the day, was in a "very grave" condition, the physicians announced.

Paris, Dec. 29.—(UP)—Marshal Joseph Joffre, fighting for his life against poison, age and the amputation of a leg, appeared to be holding on by sheer courage today.

Last religious rites were administered to the old soldier, hero of the Marne and "Saviour of France." He suffered slight, temporary facial paralysis during the night.

When he seemed at the point of death, Joffre recovered and spoke with normal vigor. His doctors asked him how he felt, and he replied briskly, as if he might have been addressing his troops: "Excellent!"

Physicians were amazed at his vitality. His resistance became the talk of all France. Joffre is 78 years old. He has been ill from inflammation of the arteries for months. His left leg was amputated above the knee on account of gangrene 10 days ago, and since then there has always been at least one doctor by his side.

Relatives of "Papa" Joffre, knowing his formidable courage, believed that he might continue the unequal struggle for days.

Madame Joffre telegraphed her thanks to King Alfonso of Spain, who sent a message of sympathy to the marshal.

An official communique issued at 3 a. m. today, said: "Marshal Joffre passed the night without incident. The patient is feeble, but maintains complete lucidity. His temperature is 37.05 (98.6 Fahrenheit) and his pulse 90."

France was cheered by the news that "Papa" Joffre, hero of the Marne, had survived another day, but made no effort to conceal the fear that the warrior, now late in his 78th year, could not withstand the combined attack of age, poison and amputation.

Little hope had been offered anxious crowds over Sunday. "Unfortunately the amelioration noted this (Sunday) morning failed to continue, and the patient is weakening," a bulletin said. "Contrary to certain reports, there was not a second amputation."

FOUR WOMEN HURT AS CARS COLLIDE

Four women were injured, two seriously early this afternoon when two automobiles collided at First and Bristol streets.

The injured were Hazel A. Davis, Mrs. Minnie Stinchfield, Mrs. Harriett Stinchfield and Miss Velda May Stinchfield, all of 2941 Pine avenue, Lomita, who were riding in an automobile driven by Roy E. Davis, also of Lomita.

The Davis car collided with a machine reported driven by J. W. DeWitt, of Santa Ana, Route No. 3. No one in the DeWitt car was hurt. The Davis car overturned, pinning at least two of the occupants underneath.

According to B. A. Hershey, city traffic officer, who was called to the scene of the wreck, the Davis family and friends were on their way to the funeral of Mr. Davis father at the time of the accident.

The injured were taken to the Santa Ana Valley hospital where it was reported that two of the cases were serious.

Round Table Conference Meets Again

Decisive Stages of Negotiations Reached and Action Expected

LONDON, Dec. 29.—(UP)—A wave of unrest swept India from the Afghan frontier to Burma today as the Indian round table conference reconvened and prepared to enter the decisive stages of its negotiations.

Various incidents in India caused Britishers to fear that the civil disobedience campaign was fast getting out of hand there. Yesterday's outbreak in Bombay and recent attempts against British officials were given as evidence that the leaders of the all Indian congress were forgetting their creed of non-violence.

Although most of the congress leaders and between 30,000 and 40,000 political offenders are in Indian jails, anti-British activity has been intensified during recent weeks.

It is believed here that the unrest is due to determination on the part of congress leaders to create a spirit of ill will throughout India, which would threaten seriously any attempt to carry out the decisions of the round table conference. The seriousness of the movement is seen in the fact that the viceroy, Lord Irwin promulgated repressive measures last week, although it was known that he was reluctant to take such steps while the round table conference is in session.

Both these plans were unanimously approved by the state assessors at their convention last fall and will fulfill a scheme long considered by the board.

Various plans for relieving property through imposition of different kinds of taxes were submitted to the tax committee in its sessions during the past two years, but members are believed to have agreed that the existing revenue system must serve for the present.

This view is in harmony with ideas of Governor-Elect Rolph, who has declared himself against any new forms of taxation at this time.

Lawyer Named As Commissioner Of Corporations

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 29.—(UP)—Gratification was felt in many quarters today over the appointment of Raymond Leroy Haight, Los Angeles attorney and a trustee of the University of Southern California, as the new state commissioner of corporations.

Haight, who will succeed Arthur H. Garland, appointed by retiring Governor C. C. Young, is a grand nephew of Henry H. Haight, an early California governor.

In announcing the appointment, Governor-elect James Rolph said: "Mr. Haight has been drafted for the express purpose of reorganizing and rehabilitating the corporation department to such an extent as may be necessary to cause that department to function as it was intended."

At the end of the hearing, Walker was released on bail of $1000. Walker is charged with driving his car into a small delivery truck occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Hicks, at Zinn road and Cerritos avenue, in Downey on the night of November 30. Hicks died of injuries at a Downey hospital the following day.

A charge of driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor against Walker was dismissed by Judge Baird for lack of evidence.

Transaction Is Made With Anaheim Investment Co. and Fullerton Grower

A REAL ESTATE deal involving in all $440,000, and covering property holdings in Los Angeles, Santa Ana, Anaheim and Laguna Beach, was brought to a successful termination today when William E. Otis, Santa Ana capitalist and retired banker, disposed of large holdings in Orange county to the Anaheim Investment company, and in turn took over the latter's holdings, consisting of a large four-story brick and concrete apartment house in Los Angeles.

The deal was handled by the Mel Trickey company, local real estate broker. Max Royer, prominent Fullerton business man and orange grower is president of the Anaheim Investment company, and Walter L. Amstutz, 827 South Walnut street, Anaheim, brother-in-law of Royer, is the secretary.

In accordance with the terms of the deal, the Anaheim Investment company will deliver title to the Westbridge apartments, located on Western avenue, near Cambridge street, and valued at $250,000, to William E. Otis. The building, located in a high class residence section of Los Angeles, contains 34 apartments, and seven stores. Otis expects to retain ownership and operate the property.

Otis, in turn, will turn over the following properties to the Anaheim Investment company: Knights of Pythias hall, 323 West Center street, Anaheim, valued at $110,000. The upper portion of the building is now used as a meeting place by different organizations, and the main floor is occupied by a hardware firm.

The Otis residence, 1330 North Main street, Santa Ana, valued at $30,000. Building is now vacant. To be occupied later as a tea room.

Fifty lots, located on the hill side at Arch Beach, Laguna Beach, valued at $20,000.

In addition to a trade of properties, the transaction involved a cash consideration from Otis to the Anaheim Investment company as a make-up the difference in value of the respective holdings involved in the deal. The title charges amounted close to $1000, inquiries revealed.

The Anaheim Investment company, it was disclosed, is for all intents and purposes a family concern, representing holding of the Royers of Fullerton and the Amstutzes of Anaheim.

280 PERSONS HURT IN INDIA FIGHTING

BOMBAY, India, Dec. 29.—A recurrence of the clashes between police and members of the India Congress war council, which yesterday resulted in the injury of approximately 280 persons and many arrests, was feared today. Police were prepared to cope with any new outbreaks.

The disturbances yesterday resulted from the war council's attempt to hold a flag saluting ceremony which had been forbidden by police. Crowds resisted police attempts to disperse them with lathis, or bamboo canes.

Disregarding the non-violence teachings of the Mahatma Gandhi, nationalist leader, the demonstrators stoned various centers, including the police station.

50 NATIVES DIE IN ALGIERS LANDSLIDE

ALGIERS, Dec. 29.—(UP)—Between 40 and 50 natives were believed buried today in a landslide on the edge of the city. Seven bodies have been recovered.

Tons of earth from a hill called Mustapha Superior buried several natives' homes Saturday night. Among the victims were the guests at a wedding feast. Recent heavy rains caused the landslide.

LONE GUARD PREVENTS JAIL BREAK OF MICHIGAN THUGS

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., Dec. 29.—(UP)—The courage of a single guard put down a rebellion in the Indiana state penitentiary today and prevented 12 most desperate convicts in the prison from completing a scheme to escape.

The guard, Guy Burklow, barring the men's path to the door of a cell block, beyond which lay freedom, kept the convicts from advancing by drawing his revolver.

While reinforcements were being brought from Michigan City to put down the rebellion, Burklow kept the dozen men, all of whom had made individual attempts to escape in the past, at a distance. It was 50 minutes before the convicts were overpowered and order restored.

Joseph Burns, a life prisoner for murder, started the outbreak when he opened the door of his cell with a key, made from a spoon. The men had a rope made of knotted bedsheets up which they intended to climb over the outer walls.

The rebellious prisoners were thrown into solitary confinement. They were "packed in like sardines," Walter Daly said.

Conditions in the prison appeared normal an hour after the break, but precautions were taken to prevent spread of the disturbance.

The other 11 men involved in the break had made individual attempts to escape during the past year, and should have been in solitary confinement but for crowded conditions. They were segregated in D cell house.

LEGISLATIVE TAX COMMITTEE REPORT READY FOR SOLONS WHEN THEY MEET NEXT WEEK

SACRAMENTO, Calif., Dec. 29.—(UP)—The legislative tax committee report is ready for submission to the legislature, with exception of that body's recommendation on the much disputed 4 per cent net income tax on banks and corporations, the United Press learned today.

California's who have feared that this tax investigating group, appointed by the 1929 legislature, would saddle the new state with a host of new taxes, may quiet their fears.

It is understood that adoption of no new sources of revenues will be advocated at this time, although several potential fields of state taxation may be discussed.

Enlargement of duties of the state board of equalization are recommended by the legislature, it is believed. This will include creation of a new office to be known as "adviser to the assessors," and a division in the equalization board to function permanently in equalizing assessment rates in the various counties of the state.

Both these plans were unanimously approved by the state assessors at their convention last fall and will fulfill a scheme long considered by the board.

COMMITTEE BACKS $45,000,000 FUND

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29.—(UP)—Appropriation of $45,000,000 for drought relief was approved by a house appropriations subcommittee today after it received from Secretary of Agriculture Hyde a recommendation for the entire amount authorized by congress in the measure passed before Christmas.

Chairman Wood of the appropriations committee said the full committee would report a $45,000,000 appropriation bill to the house next Monday, with expectation of house passage on that day.

Tommy Walker is held to answer

Thomas Walker, Santa Ana Negro, charged with manslaughter in connection with the death of G. E. Hicks, Downey truck driver, was held to answer to the superior court at the conclusion of his preliminary examination today before Judge E. S. Baird, of the Los Angeles municipal court.

At the end of the hearing, Walker was released on bail of $1000. Walker is charged with driving his car into a small delivery truck occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Hicks, at Zinn road and Cerritos avenue, in Downey on the night of November 30. Hicks died of injuries at a Downey hospital the following day.

OVER 500 PERSONS IN U. S. EARN OVER MILLION YEARLY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29.—Taxpayers in the million dollar a year income class nearly doubled in 1928, increasing to a total of 511 as a result of a booming stock market and business conditions in that year.

Revised income statistics for 1928 issued today by the treasury revealed that a new crop of super-millionaires was created in the last complete year of prosperity.

In addition to those individuals who reported incomes of $1,000,000 or more in that single year, the treasury's figures showed there were more than 43,000 persons with incomes in excess of $50,000, which is the usual interest on $1,000,000. Few of these taxpayers had $1,000,000 capital, however, but derived their income from wages and dividends.

In the highest class of income, that of $5,000,000 and more were 26 persons. There was one each in Alabama, California, Michigan, Iowa, North Carolina, Ohio and Wisconsin; three each in Illinois and New Jersey; 11 in New York and two in Pennsylvania.

The state lists of persons having incomes of $1,000,000 or more gave Alabama two, California seven, Connecticut nine, Delaware nine, District of Columbia two, Florida seven, Illinois 57, Indiana two, Iowa five, Kentucky one, Maine three, Maryland nine, Massachusetts 24, Michigan 25, Minnesota seven, Missouri five, New Jersey 12, New York 243, North Carolina three, Ohio 23, Oklahoma one, Pennsylvania 41, Rhode Island two, Tennessee four, Texas two and Wisconsin four.

MRS. PETERS LAID TO REST ON SATURDAY

One of the largest gatherings ever attending a funeral here was present Saturday at the Smith and Tutthill chapel when services were conducted for Mrs. George Peters, who passed away last Thursday at her home, 110 West First street.

The Rev. F. T. Porter, former pastor of the First Christian church here and now in Los Angeles, was in charge of the services, conducted in a chapel filled with beautiful flowers.

BELL-ANS FOR INDIGESTION

Calvin Coolidge Says:

By CALVIN COOLIDGE
Former President of United States

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Dec. 29.—It does not seem likely that any attempt made in the near future to start another political party could succeed. It is an enormous undertaking that requires the force of some great moral upheaval to make it effective. Without a political leader of nation-wide influence no practical result would be secured.

So far as it now appears any new party would have to be radical. Because the Democratic party has had the solid South without much regard to issues it has usually tried to appeal to the radicals in the north. If it were to lose this strength it could not win. If there were no choice at the next presidential election the decision would go to the house of representatives where in 1932 the Republicans will control a majority of the states and so would elect a Republican president. A third party apparently would ensure a Republican victory. For that reason any plan to start a new party will not seem practical. But in addition to this our people are not third party minded. They believe all necessary reforms can be secured within the old parties and that they are the best instruments of government.

A GOOD CIGAR

EASTON, Md.—The cigar which Lee Stewart was smoking when a train crashed into his auto recently must have been a good one. The train dragged the car and its occupant for more than a block. Spectators freed Stewart from the wreckage. He was uninjured—and his cigar was still smokable after he climbed from the wreck of the car.

A noise filter is now being perfected which will be placed in windows and not only keep the uproar of the street from the ears of those indoors, but also remove dust and dirt from incoming air.

district showed readings of between 27 and 29 degrees. Lows in the more exposed points of the district went to 24, 25 and 26 between midnight and daylight.

Tustin Hills Citrus association officials stated that the temperatures in that district varied from 25 to 34 degrees. The low point was not maintained for any appreciable length of time, and was reached about two o'clock. There is some ice in the fruit in some parts of the district, but nothing serious and very small damage, if any, according to reports from Tustin.

Crews were called into the groves to operate the heaters about midnight in all parts of the county and the fight, which was apparently successful, was kept up until 6 a. m.

Association officials stated on inquiry that present supplies of oil were satisfactory, but that requests for additional quantities should be made two or three days in advance of the time when it was needed, as railroad and trucking facilities are hard pressed to meet the present demands for service.

The coldest temperature in Santa Ana, according to the Hill and Son thermometer, was reached at 7 a. m. today, when the mercury had dropped to 34.

The readings in the outside districts fluctuated during the last half of the night, according to reports received from several sources, never staying long at a low point.

continuation of tax studies and, possibly suggest appointment of a permanent tax commission for the state, charged with continually studying the taxation problems of California and comparing progress made in other states.

Members of the committee are understood to be divided on the subject of the 4 per cent net income on banks and corporations, made a political issue in the last gubernatorial campaign.

The board of equalization has submitted a plan to the committee drawn by Dixwell L. Pierce, secretary of the board, which calls for repeal of the four per cent tax, passed by the 1929 legislature, and substituting a system in vogue before the old "share tax" basis, at a lower rate than before and the former "corporate excess" tax on corporations.

Pierce claims his plan will raise bank taxes from a total of $740,000 paid last year in the state to at least $2,500,000 yearly. It is known that the committee feels California bankers are evading their fair share of the state tax burden and it is possible they will give the Pierce plan a trial.

merger there would have been a stock exchange in which Sheet and Tube shareholders would have received one and one-third shares of Bethlehem for one of Sheet and Tube. Eaton fought this on the ground that the true basis of exchange should be 1.75 for one, claiming approval of the former would result in $50,000,000 losses to Sheet and Tube shareholders.

High points of Judge Jenkins' decision were: Statement that directors of Sheet and Tube "acted without necessary information" when they voted last March 12 to approve the consolidation. This was one of Eaton's major contentions.

The assertion that the rights of Sheet and Tube minority stockholders were "violated because vital information was withheld from them." This too, was one of Eaton's contentions.

Attack on "secrecy" with which the preliminary negotiations were conducted. Eaton charged that despite the fact he was one of Sheet and Tube's largest stockholders, he was not informed of the merger until the negotiations had been completed.

The decision criticized the part played in the negotiations by Henry G. Dalton, Cleveland, director of both Sheet and Tube and Bethlehem. Dalton was not mentioned by name but was termed a "common director."

Dalton was prominently identified with the pro-merger forces and was charged with conniving with Purnell, Campbell, Grace and others to withhold news of the consolidation from Eaton and his associates.

Judge Jenkins also held that the Bethlehem, received a bonus of $1,600,000 in 1929, should have been revealed to Sheet and Tube shareholders.

During the trial the bonus issue was one of the hardest fought. Existence of the system, under which even minor Bethlehem executives became millionaires almost overnight, was not revealed until the trial was at its height.

WELL IN OKLAHOMA FIELD RUNS WILD

OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 29.—(UP)—One of the oldest wells in the Oklahoma City field blew out today and was flowing wild.

The No. 1 Emerson-Joyce well, one location south of the discovery well, was shooting gas into the air at the rate of 40,000,000 cubic feet daily.

Drillers said there was great danger of the gas catching fire.

New York Matador Fails To Impress Mexico City Bulls

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 29.—(UP)—The adamant refusal of three Zatepec bulls to become enraged at the advances of Sidney Franklin, was blamed by the Brooklyn matador today for his inability to graduate from the novice class. Franklin, in his first appearance in Mexico City since he left it as a tyro a few years ago to make a reputation in Spain, had hoped yesterday to gain recognition as a full fledged bull fighter.

But he failed miserably. The spirit was willing but the bulls weren't. Franklin despatched all three bulls with his sword, but the animals, hardly more vicious than a litter of Pekinese pups, furnished little opposition. Hence, the Brooklyn bull baiter was unimpressive.

PAIR ACCUSED OF MURDER ON TRIAL TODAY

Factory work sheets today took a part in the trial of Lloyd W. Dye, Costa Mesa youth and Gordon E. Gauss, charged with the murder of Wade Horton, aged Mint canyon rancher as the prosecution introduced the sheets to show Gauss had been unaccountably absent from work the day following the murder.

Taking the stand in Superior Judge Charles W. Fricke's court, H. C. Yearwood, foreman of the Downey factory where Gauss had worked, identified the employment records and declared they revealed Gauss had not reported for work on May 19, last. Horton was slain by holdup men at his lonely Mint canyon ranch on the night of May 18.

Yearwood also bolstered up the prosecution's case when he identified a photograph of Tony Martinez, asserted accomplice in the holdup and slaying, and testified that Martinez and Gauss had worked side by side at the plant for many months.

According to the prosecution, Martinez had been raised there from childhood by Wade Horton and his 92 year old brother, George Horton, and knew their custom of keeping large sums of money in their home. It is alleged that Martinez induced Gauss to aid him in robbing the aged brothers and that Gauss brought his friend, Dye, in on the asserted plot.

ASSERT WOMAN FAILED TO AID CRASH VICTIMS

Anna Stumbaugh, housewife, of Westminster, was rearrested last night and lodged in the county jail, on a complaint charging failure to stop and render aid.

Mrs. Stumbaugh was arrested on November 18, at which time she was accused of driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor. She was released on her own recognizance at the time and the complaint was never filed against her. An investigation on the part of the district attorney's office resulted in the filing of the failure to stop and render aid charge.

Two little girls, daughters of J. L. Edwards, of Westminster, were injured on November 18, when a car said to have been driven by Mrs. Stumbaugh collided with the Edwards machine, which was parked at Seventeenth street and the Huntington Beach road. Mrs. Stumbaugh and two other women in the machine with her at the time are said to have failed to render aid after the accident. They were arrested a short time later.

a platform on all of them and could not satisfy the constituencies on all of them any more than can the old parties.

"Take power, prohibition, farm relief and the duty of the state and national governments with reference to at least two great problems; who will write a platform that will weld together constituencies throughout the party?"

"I do not see any new party but I do see some realignments which will be evident in legislative matters rather than in any open announcement on the part of either leaders or constituencies. That has already taken place to a marked degree."

Borah referred to the opposition to Sen. George W. Norris, Republican, Nebraska, by Executive Director Robert H. Lucas of the Republican national committee.

"There are two things about which I do not feel deeply moved," Borah said, "first, a few men reading somebody out of a party; second, a few men organizing a new party."

DEATHS

A WORD OF COMFORT

Cariyle reminds us that "our own conviction is the most powerful strength that we have persuaded some one else."

When your doubts loom large and your heart quails within you go out and find some one whose burden is heavier than yours and try to bring encouragement to him; it will reveal to you what faith and courage you really have.

When you see the utter desolation of one who has no deep conviction of the eternity of life and of love, you impulsively spend yourself to give him hope, and you find that your own faith goes deeper than you thought.

500 ATTRACTED TO OLD INDIAN BURIAL GROUND

More than 500 persons visited the Indian cemetery Sunday on the Calles Brothers' ranch, formerly the Sherman Buck ranch, adjoining the Bolsa Chica Gun club, three miles west of Huntington Beach. In a space of 15 by 30 feet, more than 100 skulls have been unearthed. N. Acevedo, intelligent Spanish employee of the ranch, and W. Peters, American employed on the ranch, plowing three feet deep in the field, discovered the burial mound.

Acevedo had some previous experience in such matters during his residence in Mexico. Those who would venture an opinion on the matter, pronounced all skulls as those of men, mostly young men, but no skull in which teeth were contained was believed to have been that of a man much more than middle aged. Another peculiarity about the find of so many bodies is that some of the skulls have higher foreheads than others, but most of the skulls have low foreheads.

Relics found in the grave consisted entirely of stone, with one exception. There was one article made of clay. It was possibly an Indian pipe. The clay had apparently not been burned, but rather moulded. There was no evidence that the pipe, if pipe it was, had ever contained fire, as the inside was not burned. There were Indian stone bowls, used for grinding meal, and the pestle that the Indians used to crush their corn into meal. One bowl weighed 40 pounds, and one pestle weighed nine pounds. There were smaller stone bowls.

There were shells resembling abalone shells but not abalones. It is believed these large shells were used for food containers. There was a stone found which was four by five inches with the edges slightly rounded, and 70 small holes in even rows in the stone, the holes being near a quarter of an inch in diameter. The stone was either used in some game, or for some unknown purpose. People versed in Indian lore said they had never seen such a relic.

Many arrow heads, some quite large, as large as Indian spear heads, were found. The arrowheads, made of obsidian, were beautifully finished, the workmanship being smooth and the cutting as fine as any Indian work of similar character. The arrowheads ranged all the way from two to six or eight inches in length. Possibly the larger may have been spear heads.

The skulls and bodies bore evidence of having been laid out in graves, either many bodies in one large grave, or the bodies laid out close together. The fact that all were men, if this is a correct deduction, might indicate a battle had been fought, and the soldiers who were killed, were buried in the peat soil, where digging was easy; as the sort of people who used the crude weapons and tools found must have had little to dig with.

Another theory advanced was that there may have been a marshy spring there, and the Indians disposed of their dead by depositing the bodies in the spring, or marsh. That area was overgrown with willows when the white men came here to claim it. It has been drained and is now valuable peat land, highly productive.

It is claimed that the skulls found were more like those of the flat head Indians, or some low type of low foreheads, and skulls large at the back. The presence of some skulls, with higher foreheads, may mean no more different than is to be found in the average group of 100 Americans, picked at random.

If the burial plot was the single grave of 100 Indians who died in battle, what they fought for, or what tribes were in combat, is beyond the Indian lore of this area. The Indians frequented the Huntington Beach mesa and gathered fish here, and grew their corn on the peat lands in this vicinity, for untold ages, but they were rather a peaceful type, and the bare country between the mountains and the sea protected their lands from invasion.

Walter C. Pira, 52, of Huntington Beach, and Monnie E. Gault, 45, of Midway City, have applied for a marriage license in Riverside.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold W. Smith, 417 McClay street, today had as a souvenir a Christmas card that was saved from the wreckage of the Western Express mail plane piloted by Howard (Bart) Cook, former Santa Ana football star. The plane hit a house in a mislanding and burned, 1445 pounds of Christmas mail being destroyed. Smith's card was partially burned but readable. It was from Montoursville, Pa.

Court Notes

Jose Ramirez is plaintiff in an action filed in superior court against Miguel Aligandar and Rafaela Bravo, in which he demands damages of $1000 for asserted failure to transfer title to property in Mexico and also asks that the defendants be required to complete the transaction as originally planned. The plaintiff asserts he paid the defendants $375 for title to the property.

An appeal from judgment for the defendants rendered by Justice Charles Kuchel, of Anaheim, was filed today in superior court by the Ganahl-Grim Lumber company. Defendants in the action were Wharton and Lusk, operating as the Lilliput Golf course. The lumber company had sued for a balance of $124.88 alleged to be due for materials, and judgment of $100 for the defendants was returned by the court. The defendants alleged they were under legal age and had paid $100 down, later seeking to rescind the action and return the materials they had obtained.

Friendly Indians Will Take Trail

Friendly Indians will take the trail tomorrow morning, not on the warpath, but on a peaceful expedition to study some old Indian relics in Black Star canyon. The party will leave the Y. M. C. A. at 9:30 a. m., piloted by R. H. McArthur, and will spend the day in exploring certain kitchen middens and other remains of the Indians who used to occupy this region. Prepare Inn For County Occupancy

As part of the work of preparing the building and grounds of St. Ann's inn for use as a court house annex, workmen today started wrecking the fence in front of the property. It is to be removed and the lawn and grounds left open to the street. The landscaping of the grounds will receive considerable attention, according to Dr. F. W. Siabaugh, county purchasing agent, who is in charge of the work, so that it will become one of the outstanding beauty spots of the city.

COLLINS WILL KEEP PRESENT OFFICE STAFF

Announcement of the staff of the office of the district attorney for the new term was made today by Assistant District Attorney Sam Collins, who will assume the direction of the office on January 1. All members of the present staff will be retained and S. B. B. Kaufman, former deputy, who resigned last summer to enter private practice, will return to the office as assistant district attorney, the post now held by the district attorney-elect.

The lineup includes W. F. Menton, chief deputy, Leo Frills and Preston A. Turner. Menton and Turner were added to the staff of the retiring district attorney Z. B. West, after Kaufman and L. W. Blodgett had resigned during this summer. Kaufman joined Franklin G. West, brother of the district attorney, in the private practice of law, and Blodgett opened offices of his own.

Other members of the staff who will be retained are Robert Sandon, investigator, Ruth Robertson, stenographer, and Pauline Knapp, clerk.

Present plans, as announced today by Franklin G. West, call for the formation of the law firm of West and West, in which the present district attorney will become a member upon his retirement from public office. He will succeed Kaufman as a partner of Franklin West.

WHERE FORMER SANTA ANAN CRASHED

Nothing but the metal framework remained after flames destroyed the wreckage of a big tri-motored passenger and mail plane piloted by Bart Cock, formerly of Santa Ana, that overshot its landing field in Los Angeles and fell against a house after crashing through an orchard—but the three occupants of the plane and the two people who were asleep in the house escaped unhurt, while most of the 1500 pounds of Christmas mail in the plane also was saved. This shows what the wreckage looked like after the fire had been extinguished.

Decorations for the home were carried out with ferns and roses and sprays of cotoneaster. Prizes at the card game went first for men to E. G. Griggs of Anaheim, and first for women to Mrs. Emma Honadell, while Clifford Neil of Long Beach and Mrs. Sarah Tabor were consoled. About 20 were present.

WOMAN REPORTS FALLING METEOR

Who has a perfectly good meteor in his back yard?

Mrs. H. J. Harris, of West Seventeenth street near Newhope avenue, declared today that she saw a meteor about 9:15 o'clock on the night of December 24 while driving on West Fifth street. Startled, she stopped her car and watched the long string of red disappear in the distance.

The meteor appeared to be several feet long and seemed to have a tail. It was one unbroken line of red and seemed to drop in the vicinity of Buena Park.

Mrs. Harris at first thought that she had seen a falling star but a glance at the sky disclosed that no stars were visible.

News dispatches from Idaho told of residents of Lewiston searching for a large meteor which had been seen the night of December 24.

Owner Pays For Gasoline Used In Stolen Auto

Adding insult to injury would be a good way to express the case of the man who lost his automobile in San Juan Capistrano several days ago and then found out that the person who stole it was making him pay for the gasoline being used in it as the car thief drove throughout Southern California.

A gasoline credit card was in the car at the time the machine was stolen, and according to police officers, the thief has been using the card promiscuously wherever he has been in the machine. At any rate, the owner of the car has been receiving bills for gasoline procured on the credit card.

Dan Milan, 49, a builder of Monterey Park, wanted in San Juan Capistrano in connection with the theft of the machine, was arrested at Riverside yesterday and returned to the Orange county jail last night by Joe Clever, state officer, of San Juan, and Fred Humiston, local deputy sheriff.

Late News From Orange And Nearby Towns

'BELIEVING IN JESUS CHRIST' SUNDAY TOPIC

God would some day bring out of the sorrow of the present.

What God Is Like

"So when I think of Jesus, I think of such things as happiness, love, trust, courage, hope, peace. He gives me a clear picture of what God is like. A sense of dependence, a consciousness of responsibility, a capacity for reverence, I find supreme love, perfect righteousness, and above all an unwavering patience, that no disappointment can discourage and in the struggle for a just and no failure dismay."

His Meaning

"He gives me the leader I need brotherly social order. He gives me my love for friends, my joy in nature, sense of duty, consciousness of responsibility, these things I know. So I recognize in Him my sufficiency. What does He mean to you? This is a question that each must answer for himself; not in words only, but in his life. Jesus says, 'If any man will come after me, let him deny himself and take up his cross daily and follow me.' He does not give the summons alone, but also the promise, 'Lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world.' I can follow Him with love and confidence."

Leader and Friend

"Was there ever such a character? Half the business of living is to encounter pain and loneliness of some sort. That which is of the heart is more bitter than that of the flesh. Here Jesus is apart from all other leaders of men. He is a personal companion, a sympathetic friend; a light in the far off and deep down places in the heart. Thus I found in Jesus my all sufficiency. The keynote of His religion is the worth of the individual, the significance of the individual human life. He called His disciples from among the poor and lowly. He had compassion upon the multitudes, because they were like sheep without a shepherd. He paused in His teachings about God to take little children up into His arms. He protested the cold-blooded policy that would make a man of less value than a sheep. He said the welfare of His children is the Father's first and greatest care. How can we doubt His willingness to clothe us, when the lily of the field is so gorgeously arrayed? Shall food fall His children when the birds of the air are being fed? 'Be not afraid, only believe,' and be glad."

New Jersey established the first State Highway Department in 1891.

LIFE IN SIAM DESCRIBED FOR ORANGE GROUP

ORANGE, Dec. 29.—The Rev. Loren S. Hanna, foreign minister at Lampang, Siam, spoke at the morning service at the First Presbyterian church. "How Lovely Are the Messengers," by Mendelssohn, was the anthem given by the choir with Percy J. Green at the organ. "O Speak to Me" was a solo by Mrs. Morris Berry. The Rev. L. M. Pearson offered the prayer, having been the pastor of this charge at the time that the Rev. Mr. Hanna was sent to the foreign field.

The Rev. Mr. Hanna said in part: "I shall try to picture to you something of our life in the foreign field. You are inclined to place a halo about the head of a missionary but I want you to know that we are human and have the same shortcomings as you. Get your eyes off the missionary and consider the message of Christ that he is delivering. Today, I am going to give you a cross-section of our missionary work for the past 18 years in Siam. Mrs. Hanna being there for that length of time."

"The year begins in April, which is hot and dry with a temperature sometimes as high as 135 degrees. Much of that month is spent in the mountains. Some tours are made in the month of May but the hot, rainy season has set in and lasts until November. October is the first tiring month of the year which is continued on through the cool, dry months until April. These tours are out in the country. I shall picture a tour for you. Starting in January, we send to a village in the northern part for carriers. We get 12 packing baskets made of rattan weighing about a pound in which our provisions of canned goods, sugar, potatoes, clothing, and bedding are packed. The mattresses are put in two baskets with two carriers."

"The vegetables have to be renewed during the trip. One carrier takes a basket weighing 50 pounds. We try to do as the natives do as far as consistent with our health, but we could not live as they do. We carry scriptures, medicines, a portable phonograph, and an organ worked by bellows. The children ride in rattan chairs. At some of the rivers we cross over in ox-carts and sometimes in boats made of logs fastened together and propelled by six natives. We place a picture roll on a tree, unload the phonograph and give the gospel message. We spend the night in the jungle. The natives dig out a moist place and get water for them to carry no water with them."

"In the morning we reach a village of huts with bamboo floors and thatched roofs. We place the tent flap on the floor to keep the bugs off. We take a bath and rest ready for a meeting at 3 or 4 o'clock in the afternoon and visits in the homes of Christians and non-Christians. Mrs. Hanna gathers the children together and teaches them to pray much as my sister does with the children in San Francisco. In the evening we have a Bible school."

"After spending two or three weeks on a tour we return home. There is a hospital with 30 beds where Dr. and Mrs. Cook give the gospel story. There is a school for boys and girls, 180 of each. There is definite Bible study in

YARDSTICK OF SPIRITUALITY FRIENDS TOPIC

EL MODENA, Dec. 29.—"O that thou hadst hearkened to my commandments; then had thy peace been as a river, and thy righteousness as the waves of the sea," found in Isaiah 48:18, the Rev. Joseph Reese of the Friends church of El Modena spoke yesterday as follows: "Several thoughts have been expressed this evening in Christian Endeavor and in the testimonies here, on obedience. You have heard people question their Christian experience; they worry themselves with these questions—'Am I indeed a Christian? Do I really love Jesus? They want to feel like other people feel. Some seem to talk so fluently. They say, 'I have tried my best and I can't get that kind of an experience. The devil may be worrying you along that line.'"

"Jesus says very little about our feelings, and very little about our joys; he says very little about how we should act along that line. There are, I believe, some yardsticks we can use, as to our standing with Jesus Christ. Feelings are no indication of spirituality. Because people laugh is no sign of Christianity. Some who are not so loud in their praises, are doing some real, honest Christian living. Because one person shouts and another person is silent, is not an indication of spiritual life. One time I was teaching in a Bible school where much energy was spent in shouting and in hallelujahs. I did not feel as if it was my place to shout; one day one of the students came to me, and told me that several of the students were praying that I might have an experience that would make me shout. Soon afterwards revival meetings were being held, and I was asked to take charge of the music. I did so, and we had a large orchestra and sometimes 300 or more in the meetings. When there was another revival, they asked some one else to take charge of the music; they wanted some one who could shout. But later the same student who had told me they were praying for me, came to me and apologized; they had decided that shouting wasn't the test of walking with God."

"But some things are a test; in John 14:23, we find these words: 'If a man love me he will keep my commandments.' Obedience to God is a test. The real test of our experience is obedience. If you are obedient, you may have to give a testimony. I once knew a splendid Christian man, a tailor, who was very quiet, and very bashful. One time we were in a meeting, and each class and chapel every morning."

The Rev. Mr. Hanna is a graduate of the San Francisco Theological seminary and was sent to Siam by this church as missionary pastor. He and family are home on their second furlough.

song service was going on. Suddenly there was a commotion over in one corner, and as I looked, this man was almost jumping up and down in his earnestness. The preacher said to his wife, who was sitting there, 'Does he live the life he is shouting about?' And she answered, 'He most certainly does.' The preacher said, 'Go ahead and shout then.' I never heard him shout but two or three times, in all the meetings which we both attended but each time he shouted it brought conviction to many souls."

What Obedience Means "Enoch walked with God, and he was not, for God took him." Obedience to God means a walk with Him which is progressive. It means we are going where God goes. Keeping step with God, means obedience to God's will. Obedience means a constant walk with God. It means an unbroken walk. God doesn't grant any leaves of absence; he grants no vacations, no holidays. We can't serve God today and do something else tomorrow. When you have walked faithfully with God, and have had the feeling that you must speak to some one about their soul you have trembled; but because of consecration, you have spoken to them, and the Lord has blessed your speaking, you have had an experience you would not have missed. Blessed experiences come by obedience. The question is, did we do our best. As we walk along with God, we do not know which way to go; sometimes it seems that everything is going wrong, and that we have great trials like Job, who finally said, 'I know that my Redeemer liveth. With that trust and obedience to God, I do not care what comes, or what the consequences are, the pull of the world becomes less and the pull to prayer becomes stronger, because you have obeyed.'"

ORANGE PERSONALS

ORANGE, Dec. 29.—Miss Katherine Cole, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. W. B. Cole, returned home today from Pasadena to spend a vacation. Miss Cole attended a party Saturday at the Hotel Huntington given for members of the Shakespeare club, an organization of young business and professional women of Pasadena. The Cole family expects to drive to San Diego this week to visit in the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Simmons.

Hal Sackett was a business visitor in Long Beach Saturday.

H. O. Wallace and Harvey Riggles were Los Angeles visitors Saturday.

Mrs. George Bartley and daughter, returned home today from Brawley, where they have been guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Burnett, former residents of this vicinity. Miss Bartley and her mother plan to spend the week visiting relatives and friends in Long Beach, Alhambra and Pomona before the former returns to the Santa Barbara state teachers' college.

ORANGE PASTOR IN SERMON ON 'FIVE FRIENDS'

ORANGE, Dec. 29.—"Five Friends" was the sermon given by the Rev. Franklin H. Minck at the Sunday morning service at the Christian church. "Hear Ye," by Ira B. Wilson, was the anthem by the choir. Mrs. Leon Des Larzes sang "Enough to Know."

The Rev. Mr. Minck said in part: "The man with the palsy was carried by his four friends. Each one was necessary for each held up a corner of his mat. They were true friends who were of benefit to the loved one rather than themselves. The great friend did more than the four friends had expected. He healed the sick man and also forgave his sins, the greatest blessing that can be bestowed on any man. He did that to prove to the scribes that He was the Messiah. The people glorified God after that miracle. When people see the gospel of Christ in all its simplicity without human entanglement, they will come to Him and give God the glory."

"Courage in 1931" was the subject of the Sunday evening service. The prelude was a piano solo by Alice Des Larzes. The responsive reading was led by the Boys' and Girls' Glee club. Singing was directed by Mrs. Walter Kogler, with Mrs. Neleta Wolfe at the piano. "The Birthday of a King" was a solo by Dorothy Finley. "Star of the Night" was given by the Girls' chorus. The offertory was a piano solo by Leona Shell.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—
Joe Tinker lost a pile of spin-ach in Florida real estate . . . and wants a job now so badly that he may become an American Association umpire next season. . . . Bucky Harris had some old men about him when he piloted Washington to a couple of pennants. . . . Mogridge, Leibold, Peckinpaugh, Rice, Judge, Ruel, Johnson and Zachary . . . now he is taking on a few veterans at Detroit, such as Wally Schang and Jumping Joe Dugan. . . . The city council of St. Petersburg, Fla., has named the town ball park "Huggins Field." . . . The survivors have been busy in Philadelphia since the baseball season ended. . . . and now come forth with the startling announcement that Babe Ruth hit a home run there that traveled 481 feet on the fly. . . . 11 of those would be a mile, and then some.

THE NEW BALL
Break deliveries are suggested at once by the disclosure that the big league teams in spring training will experiment with a different kind of baseball from that which the present generation of diamond athletes has been using. The new ball will have a seam, it is said, made of thread that is twice as heavy as that used in the old apple, and the horsehide covering will be twice as thick. The heavy thread will provide a ridge around the ball at the seam, offering a better grip for pitchers and offering wind resistance that may result in some queer curves. Certainly with a ball like that, it will be easier for a hurler to toss a twister.

THE OLD "DIPSY-DO"
Dave Danforth's way with a ball is recalled immediately. Dave had a way of lifting the cover at the seam, using his thumbnail, which he used to file to a sharp point, to doctor the spheroid. The ball, with a rising spin along the seam, as thrown by Danforth, used to perform after the manner of Frank Merriwell's best fofoles. The ball with a raised seam is made to order also for knuckleball flingers. Men like Rummel of the Athletics throw a ball that does not spin as it travels toward the plate. The pitcher gambles on an imperfection in the surface of the ball to produce a curve, or variation in the path of the pellet. With a ridge all the way around the ball at the seam, a ball pro-

SLIGHT CHANGE IN EXTRA POINT RULE PROPOSED
NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—The first move of football coaches to curtail over-emphasis on the game came today when Hugo Bezdek, veteran coach of Penn State and chairman of the stabilization committee, made his report to the American Football Coaches association.

Bezdek's report was not immediately adopted and several motions for its disposition were defeated. There will be further voting on it as the coaches discuss the points brought forward. The Penn State coach recommended:

1. There be no spring practice;
2. Football practice start not before Sept. 15; 3. That scouting be curtailed; 4. That coaches must be members of the faculty, to be paid no more or no less than other members of the faculty;
5. That coaches frown on subsidization and recruiting of athletes; 6. That the publicity departments stress the educational value of football above all else.

Gil Doble of Cornell wanted to know whether the report was a "one man report" and Bezdek agreed that it was just about that, intimating that he did not have much aid from his committee. Carl G. Snavely of Bucknell moved the report be accepted but not published but this was defeated through no second. Glenn Thielthwaite of Wisconsin moved the report be "tabled."

Meanwhile Lou Little of Columbia, chairman of the coaches' rules committee, recommended:

1. A straw vote among coaches showed 182 to 89 in favor of retaining the point after touchdown.
2. Two changes in the point after touchdown: 1. When the defensive team is offside they be penalized half the distance to the goal instead of losing the point; 2. When the offensive team is offside, they be penalized five yards instead of losing another chance at a kick.
3. The block kick rule—which provides that when the kicking team recovers a blocked kick it cannot run with the ball—should be modified to permit either team recovering to run with the ball.

Steve Luther's Cypress baseball team today tucked away another championship—this time the 1930 Orange County Harbor league title.

The powerful Cypress aggregation scored its fourteenth successive triumph of the season when it defeated Laguna Beach, 2 to 1, in the final game of the Harbor league season yesterday.

The crucial battle between the pair of first flight contenders drew a capacity crowd to the Cypress park.

Laguna Beach got off in front, Leavitt Daley bringing in a run in the fourth, but Cypress pushed in two in the last of the sixth and they were just enough to win a brilliant pitcher's battle between Lawrence Henus and "Fuzz" Page.

Two errors, a walk, a single and a double allowed Brandle and Williams to scamper across with Cypress' tying and winning tallies.

Manager Luther announced that his club would begin immediately a series of independent games. The first one will take the Orange county champions to Long Beach New Year's day to play the great Shell Oil club which is composed mostly of Class AA professionals. Cypress will travel to San Bernardino the following Sunday and go to Santa Barbara January 11.

CALIFORNIA BOXING 'CZAR' URGED BY BOARD OF INQUIRY

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 29.—(UP)—Governor Young today made public the report of his board of inquiry into professional boxing and wrestling conditions in California. Outstanding recommendations of the board were as follows: Appointment of a "czar" chief inspector, to serve as executive officer throughout the state, at a salary of from $7500 to $10,000 per year. He would be required to devote his entire time to the duties of his office.

That two veterans be named by the governor to fill the vacancies caused by the resignation of Commissioner James Wood of Los Angeles and expiration of the term of Commissioner William Hanlon of Sacramento, and that hereafter a majority of the commission be composed of veterans.

Branch offices of the commission in San Francisco and Los Angeles should be closed and records and employees be consolidated in the Sacramento office.

The offices of chief inspector in Sacramento, San Francisco and Los Angeles should be abolished. All licenses and employees of the state athletic commission should be subjected to rigid examinations prior to their being licensed or employed.

Managers of boxers should be bonded for the purpose of compelling a full observance of and compliance with the law and all rules

ARREST, JAIL ART SHIRES AS DRUNK IN L. A.

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 29.—Arthur ("The Great") Shires, who admits he is a good baseball player and a swell prizefighter, was arrested here today for intoxication, police reported.

The baseball player told police he had been on a doorman ringing expedition, and rang the bell at the side door of the Hollywood station.

Sergeant G. C. Towne, unable to persuade the Great One to re-enter his taxicab, locked him up for possession of the "knucks" and for intoxication.

Shires was taken before Municipal Judge Henry Willis and pleaded not guilty. His trial was set for December 31.

The Great One explained to the judge that he had not appeared at the police station in a spirit of hilarity but came to report the fact that two bandits had robbed him of $50 while he was walking down Normandie avenue.

Arthur cast looks of mingled surprise and scorn when one newspaperman at the hearing asked him if he had planned the adventure as a publicity stunt.

HARPER AND ROCKNE DISCUSS OLD TIMES

ROCHESTER, Minn., Dec. 29.—Jesse Harper, who coached Notre Dame football teams before fans knew famous victories of Knute Rockne, arrived today for a physical examination at the Mayo clinic.

Rockne himself and Jack Chevigny, Notre Dame backfield mentor, were here to greet the man who preceded the famous Knute. The present South Bend coach is resting here from the effects of a vigorous coaching season and Chevigny is visiting him, arranging to take the Rockne children to California this winter.

With all due respect to the San Francisco grand jury, we have been unable to find the slightest evidence to support the charges made by that body against Commissioner Traung. On the contrary, it is the opinion of the board, that he had devoted more of his time and energy to his duties as a commissioner and under greater personal sacrifice than any other member of the commission.

Among persons who have been suggested to the commission for

Stanford Grid Captain To Rewed Wife

SAN BERNARDINO, Dec. 29.—Ray Tandy, captain of the 1930 Stanford university football team, will be married here some time this week to Miss Wanda Warden, of Long Beach—for the second time.

Tandy and his bride-to-be filed notice of intention to wed here Saturday, and inadvertently made known the fact that they were secretly married Jan. 30, 1930, by a justice of the peace in Tijuana, but feared that recent supreme court decisions had voided their marriage. They will go through the ceremony again to make certain that the ties bind.

Tandy's home is in Long Beach.

FOOTE, MEISS, JOHNSON SCORE AT GOLF CLUB

W. W. (Bill) Foote, Jack Meiss and M. E. Johnson were richer in golf balls today as a consequence of their success in winning Class A match and medal play sweepstakes at the Santa Ana Country club over the week-end.

Foote, basketball coach at Santa Ana junior college, won match play. He was two down to par. M. N. Thompson, three down, was second, and L. Homer Robinson third, four down.

Meiss and Johnson tied for honors in medal play. Meiss had a card of 82-10-72, Johnson one of 86-14-72. L. W. Bemis, 80-6-74, and George Parker, 88-14-74 tied for third.

Winton ("Bud") Hoyle showed the way to a large field of Class B match players. He was one up. Bill Cole, Tustin high school coach, was second, two down, Benny Osterman, A. K. Loerch, John Martell, Dr. John Ball, Tim Talbert, R. E. Graves and L. J. Bushard all tied for third. They were three down.

D. E. Liggett finished ahead of the "B" medal shooters. He came home with 85-17-68. Earl Wilson, 87-16-71; G. J. Daley, 89-18-71, and E. Steffenson, 98-22-71, all tied for second place.

WESTERN TEAM LOSES IN L. A. WINS IN NORTH

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 29.—(UP)—It will be many a long day before football fans of Los Angeles—never bashful about the ability of their hometown teams—will waver against an eleven from Notre Dame university.

Almost as completely as the Notre Dame varsity smothered the University of Southern California eleven December 6, a team of Irish graduates combined last Saturday to administer a 20 to 7 lashing to a West-South all-star team in a charity contest here.

The West-South eleven was led by Russ Saunders, former quarterback at U. S. C. and was coached by Jimmy Phelan, mentor at the University of Washington.

The Notre Dame all-stars included Carideo, Brill, Metzger, Savoldi, Jack Elder and a dozen other players who learned their football—and plenty of it—under Rockne at South Bend.

Savoldi scored all the Irish touchdowns on nimble runs but he was aided by the star playing of the line and of Elder and Carideo in the backfield.

The West-South team presented individual brilliance and lots of fight but fell under the team play of the Notre Dame outfit. Saunders scored the loser's lone touchdown on a 15-yard run.

OBSCURE GRIDDERS FEATURE SHRINE CONTEST
SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 29.—Another demonstration that All-American football talent isn't confined to any section of the country was afforded in the sixth annual Shrine All-West charity game here Saturday.

Forty-four players from 29 colleges in all sections of the country comprised the two all-star teams, and the unknown carried off as many laurels as the widely heralded All-Americans.

Two All-American guards, Ted Beckett of California and "Botchy" Koch of Baylor, were the bulwarks of the West's but the tide of victory, with four minutes to play, "Buster" Mills, Oklahoma halfback, kicked a field goal from the 10-yard line which gave the West a 3-0 victory.

Johnny Kitzmiller, Oregon's great halfback, made possible this score. Until Kitzmiller entered the game, the West had shown almost no offensive strength, and three times had been pushed back almost to its own goal line. The East threatened to score in each of the first three periods.

It was the West's first victory in two years, but gave this section its fourth triumph in six games. A crowd of 60,000, the largest ever to see the game, attended.

Strib Ready For Sharkey Go In Miami

OSHLCKNEE, Ga., Dec. 29.—"Pa" Stribling, father and manager of Young Stribling, said here today he had agreed to let Stribling meet Jack Sharkey at Miami this winter under the auspices of Madison Square Garden, probably with Jack Dempsey as referee.

"We'll fight Sharkey anywhere but in New York," the father-manager told the United Press. "We don't want to meet him there because he has been getting away with too much foul stuff. At Miami or Chicago we'll have something to say about the referee."

Stribling's willingness to meet Sharkey at Miami, "Pa" said, has been communicated to William Carey of the Madison Square Garden corporation.

DONS, SAINTS PRACTICE FOR COMING GAMES

With both the Santa Ana high school and junior college basketball teams ready to swing into conference play next week, coaches and players were preparing to start a strenuous siege of workouts and practice games in Andrews gymnasium here tonight.

With four successive victories already under their belts, the Jaycees Dons will go gunning for a fifth triumph tomorrow night against Vic Baden's strong Concordia club outfit of Orange in Andrews gymnasium at 8 o'clock.

The Concordians boast a flashy squad of former Orange high school stars and have a franchise in the Southern California Y. M. C. A. league. They vanquished Whittier with ease but bowed before the Ontario "Y" after a close battle in their first two league games. Clarence Pargue and Carl Schroeder are the first string forwards with Nelson Struck and "Hank" Fitchman ready for reserve duty. Ernie Unzelman holds down the center duties while Clarence Bandick and Bob Pargue are the guards with Adolph Bosch ready for action.

Friday night will see both the high school and junior college in Andrews gymnasium and the high school Saints traveling to Tustin to play Coach Bill Cole's flashy farmers. The latter game is not definitely scheduled but both coaches want to play and indications are that the game will be carded Friday.

To get in trim for these games, Coaches Bill Cook of the high school and Bill Foote of the junior college have called practice sessions. The Saints will take the floor at 6:30 p. m. today and the Dons will meet at 7:15 p. m. The Saints also will drill tomorrow before the Concordia game at 6:30 p. m.

From performances in the four games this season, the starting lineup for the Jaycees team can be picked from six men. Captain Orville Schuchardt and Hal Dunham have the edge at forwards while Emmett Seacord has a slight edge over Melvin Beatty at center. Three guards are fighting for supremacy. Wayne Garlock is the regular standing guard but Elwood Lindley, lanky sharpshooter from Santa Ana and Don Johnson, flashy defensive star from Tustin, are running neck and neck for the other position.

Another combination composed of Lorry Walbridge, Max Appleby and Leason Pomeroy, forwards; Melvin Beatty, center, and Solon Beall, Truscott Lindsey and Joe McChesney, guards, are good enough to see plenty of action.

Herb Carter Wins Skeet Club Shoot

Herb Carter broke into the win column at the Santa Ana Skeet club yesterday, breaking 21 out of 25 birds. Sam Nau was a close second with 20. Others who scored were Dorsey Clayton, 18; Almer Erickson, 17; Herb Heanes, 17; Theo. Reuter, 16; Amos Smith, 12, and Stuart Peak 11.

The club will run off another shoot January 1 at 10 a. m.

CRACK PITCHER REJOINS STARS NEXT SUMMER

Just itching for the night baseball season to get under way, Glenn ("Stocky") Stockbridge, ace of the Santa Ana Stars' pitching staff in 1928 and 1929, was back in the city today.

Unless his present plans go askew, the celebrated submariner will rejoin the Southern California champions next summer.

Stockbridge has been located for the past year in Sacramento where he has been employed in state engineering work. His assignments completed, the tall pitcher headed southward with Mrs. Stockbridge and their small child to spend the holidays with relatives.

Stockbridge says they will not return to Sacramento if he is successful in obtaining expected work here.

The crack moundman is an engineer, a college graduate. Stockbridge's contemplated return to the Stars' fold figures to round out the Santa Ana night baseball club to perfection. Last year "Jumping Joe" Cornelius had to do the iron man stunt to bring the Stars out of mid-season doldrums, into the second half championship and subsequently to all-league and all-Southern laurels. A staff composed of two sterling pitchers like Cornelius and Stockbridge will leave little to be desired. There never has been any doubt about the rest of the Stars' roster.

Stockbridge was the mainstay of the Santa Ana mound staff in 1928, the first year the home guard won the Southern California pennant. He teamed up with Joe Ochso in 1929, and the locals were barely nosed out of the National Night league title by Long Beach.

The Scarab Murder Case

A PHILO VANCE STORY BY S. S. VAN DINE

"That will be all. And give my regards to your lion-headed goddess."

"It may be Anubis who will return, effendi," said Hani sepulchrally, as he left us.

Vance looked whimsically at Markham.

"The stage is set, and the curtain will go up anon... Let's move on. There's nothing more we can do here. And I'm totterin' with hunger."

As we passed out into Twentieth street Vance led the way toward Irving Place.

"I rather think we owe it to Scarlett to let him know how things stand," he explained negligently. "He brought us the sad tidings and is probably all agog and afflutter. He lives just round the corner."

Markham glanced at Vance inquisitively, but made no comment. Heath, however, grunted impatiently.

"It looks to me like we're doing 'most everything but clean up this homicide," he growled.

"Scarlett's a shrewd lad; he may have conjured up an idea or two," Vance returned.

"I got ideas, too," the Sergeant declared maliciously. "But what god are they? If I was handling this case, I'd arrest the whole outfit, put 'em in separate cells, and let 'em sweat. By the time they got habeeas-corpus proceedings started I'd know a damn sight more than I do now."

"I doubt it, Sergeant," Vance spoke mildly. "I think you'd know even less.... Ah, here's number ninety-six."

He turned into the Colonial entrance of an old brick house a few doors from Twentieth street and rang the bell.

Scarlett's quarters—two small rooms with a wide, arched doorway between—were on the second floor at the front. They were furnished severely but comfortably in Jacobean style, and typified the serious-minded bachelor. Scarlett had opened the door at our knock and invited us in with stiff cordiality of the English host. He seemed relieved to see us.

"I've been in a frightful stew for hours," he said. "Been trying to analyze this affair. I was on the point of running round to the museum and finding out what progress your gentlemen had made."

"We've made a bit of progress," Vance told him; "but it's not of a tangible nature. We've decided to let matters float for a while in the anticipation that the guilty person will proceed with his plot and thus supply us with definite evidence."

"Ah!" Scarlett took his pipe slowly from his mouth and looked sharply at Vance. "That remark makes me think that maybe you and I have reached the same conclusion. There was no earthly reason for Kyle's having been killed unless his demise was to lead to something else—"

"To what, for example?"

"By Jove, I wish I knew!" Scarlett packed his pipe with his finger and held a match to it. "There are several possible explanations."

"My word! Are there? Several? Well, well! Could you bear to outline one of them? We're dashed interested, don't y' know."

"Oh, I say, Vance! Really, now, I'd hate like the Old Harry to wrong any one," Scarlett spluttered. "Hani, however, didn't care a great deal for Doctor Bliss—"

"Thanks awfully. Astonishin' as it may seem, I noted that fact myself this morning. Have you any other little beam of sunshine you'd care to launch in our direction?"

"I think Salvator is hopelessly smitten with Meryt-Amen."

"Fancy that!"

Vance took out his cigarette-case and tapped his one remaining lighted end, and after a deep inhalation, looked up seriously.

"Yes, Scarlett," he drawled, "it's quite possible that you and I have arrived at the same conclusion. But naturally we can't make a move until we have something definite with which to back up our hypotheses. By the by, Doctor Bliss attempted to leave the country this afternoon. If it hadn't been for one of Sergeant Heath's minions he presumably would be on his way to Montreal at this moment."

I expected to see Scarlett express astonishment at this news, but instead he merely nodded his head.

"I'm not surprised. He's certainly in a funk. Can't say that I blame him. Things appear rather black for him," Scarlett puffed on his pipe, and shot a surreptitious look at Vance. "The more I think about this affair, the more I'm impressed with the possibility that, after all"

"Oh, quite," Vance cut him short. "But we're not pantin' for possibilities. What we crave is specific data."

"That's going to be difficult, I'm afraid," Scarlett grew thoughtful. "There's been too much cleverness—"

"Ah! That's the point—too much cleverness. Exactly! Therein lies the weakness of the crime. And I'm hopelessly countin' on that abundantia cautela," Vance smiled.

"Really, y' know, Scarlett, I'm not as dense as I've appeared thus far. My object in stultifyin' my perceptions has been to wangle the murderer into new efforts. Sooner or later he'll overplay his hand."

Scarlett did not answer for some time. Finally he spoke.

"I appreciate your confidence, Vance. You're very sporting. But my opinion is, you'll never be able to convict the murderer."

"You may be right," Vance admitted. "Nevertheless, I'm appealing to you to keep an eye on the situation. But I warn you to be careful. The murderer of Kyle is a ruthless Johnnie."

"You don't have to tell me that," Scarlett got up and, walking to the fireplace, leaned against the marble mantel. "I could tell you volumes about him."

"I'm sure you could." To my astonishment Vance accepted the other's startling statement without the slightest manifestation of surprise.

"But there's no need to go into that now." He, too, rose, and going to the door gave a casual wave of farewell to Scarlett. "We're totterin' along. Just thought we'd let you know how things stood and admonish you to be careful."

"Very kind of you, Vance. Fact is, I'm frightfully upset—nervous as a Persian kitten. Wish I could work; but all my materials are at the museum. I know I shan't sleep a wink tonight."

"Well, cheerio!" Vance turned the door-knob.

"I say, Vance!" Scarlett stepped forward urgently. "Are you, by any chance, going back to the Bliss house today?"

"No. We're through there for the time being," Vance's voice was quiet and droning, as with ennui. "Why do you ask?"

Scarlett fiddled at his pipe with a sort of sudden agitation.

"No reason," he looked at Vance with a constricted brow. "No reason at all. I'm anxious about the situation. There's no telling what may happen."

"Whatever happens, Scarlett," Vance said, with a certain abruptness, "Mrs. Bliss will be perfectly safe. I think we can trust Hani to see to that."

"Yes—of course," the man murmured. "Faithful dog, Hani. And who'd want to harm Meryt?"

"Who, indeed?" Vance was now standing in the hallway, holding the door open for Markham and Heath and me to pass through.

Scarlett, animated by some instinct of hospitality, came forward. "Sorry you're going," he said perfunctorily. "If I can be of any help... So you've ended your investigation at the house?"

"For the moment, at least," Vance paused. The rest of us had passed him and were waiting at the head of the stairs. "We're not contemplatin' returning to the Bliss establishment until something new comes to light."

"Right-o," Scarlett nodded with a curious significance. "If I learn anything I'll telephone to you."

We went out into Irving Place, and Vance hailed a taxicab.

"Food—sustenance," he moaned. "Let us see... The Brevort isn't far away...."

We had an elaborate tea at the old Brevort on lower Fifth Avenue, and shortly afterward Heath departed for the Homicide Bureau to make out his report and to pacify the newspaper reporters who would be swarming in on him the moment the case went on record.

"You had better stand by," Vance suggested to the Sergeant, as he left us; "for I'm full of anticipations, and we couldn't push forward without you."

"I'll be at the office till ten tonight," Heath told him sulkily. "And after that Mr. Markham knows where to reach me at home. But, I'm here to tell you, I'm disgusted."

"So are we all," said Vance cheerfully.

Markham telephoned to Swacker to close the office and go home. Then the three of us drove to Longue Vue for dinner. Vance refused to discuss the case and insisted upon talking about Arturo Toscanini, the new conductor of the Philharmonic-Symphony Orchestra.

"A vastly overrated Kapellmeister," he complained, as he tasted his canard Moliere. "It strikes me he is temperamentally incapable of sensing the classic ideals in the great symphonic works of Brahms and Beethoven.... I say, the tomato puree in this sauce is excellent, but the Madeira wine is too vinegary. Prohibition, Markham, worked devastatin' havoc on the food of this country; it practically eliminated gastronomic aesthetics. But to return to Toscanini. I'm positively amazed at the panegyrics with which the critics have showered him. His secret ideals, I'm inclined to think, are Puccini and Giordano and Respighi. And no man with such ideals should attempt to interpret the classics. I've heard him do Brahms and Beethoven and Mozart, and they all exuded a strong Italian aroma under his baton. But the Americans worship him. They have no sense of pure intellectual beauty, of sweeping classic lines and magisterial form. They crave strongly contrasted pianissimos and fortissimos, sudden changes in tempo, leaping accelerandos and crawling retardandos. And Toscanini gives it all to 'em... Furtwangler, Walter, Klemperer, Mengelberg, Van Hoogstraaten—any one of these conductors is, in my opinion, superior to Toscanini when it comes to the great German classics...."

"Would you mind, Vance," Markham asked irritably, "dropping these irrelevances and outlining to me your theory of the Kyle case?"

"I'd mind terribly," was Vance's amiable reply. "After the Bar-leduc and Gervaise, however..."

As a matter of fact it was nearly midnight before the subject of the tragedy was again broached. We had returned to Vance's apartment after a long drive through Van Cortlandt Park; and Markham and he and I had gone up to the little roof garden to seek whatever air was stirring along East Thirty-eighth street. Currie had made a delicious champagne cup—what the Viennese call a Bowle—with fresh fruit in it; and we sat under the summer stars smoking and waiting. I say, "waiting," for there is no doubt that each of us expected something untoward to happen.

Vance, for all his detachment, was inwardly tense—I could tell this by his slow, restrained movements. And Markham was loath to go home; he was far from satisfied with the way the investigation had progressed, and was hoping—as a result of Vance's prognostication—that something would develop to take the case out of the hazy realm of conjecture and place it upon a sound basis where definite action could be taken.

Shortly before twelve o'clock Markham held a long conversation with Heath on the telephone. When he hung up the receiver he heaved a hopeless sigh.

"I don't like to think of what the opposition papers are going to say tomorrow," he remarked gloomily, as he cut the tip off of a fresh cigar. "We've got absolutely nowhere in this investigation."

"Oh, yes, we have," Vance was staring up into the sultry night. "We've made amazin' progress. The case, d'ye see, is closed as far as the solution is concerned. We're merely waitin' for the murderer to get panic-stricken. The moment he does, we'll be able to take action."

"Why must you be so confounded mysterious?" Markham was in a vile humor. "You're always indulging in cabalistic rituals. The Delphic Pythia herself was no vaguer or more obscure than you. If you think you know who killed Kyle, why not come out with it?"

Gulick Home Offers Hospitality to Many Guests

It was for children, grandchildren, and a number of friends that Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Gulick held a delightful Christmas day observance in their home at 1702 Spurgeon street. The rooms were eloquent of holiday cheer, and provided a charming setting for the delightful dinner served at 1 o'clock in the afternoon and the supper served at 8 o'clock in the evening.

Those present, other than Mr. and Mrs. Gulick, were Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Gulick, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Huntley, Mr. and Mrs. John Trickey, and the Misses Hattie and Olive Gulick of Tustin; Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Wagner and son, Billie Jr., of Garden Grove; Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Gulick and daughter, Eleanor, and Dorothy, of Fullerton; Mr. and Mrs. George A. Gulick and children, Viola and Herbert, of Anaheim.

Mark Gulick and daughters, Ellen and Maude, of Santa Barbara; Lena B. Hewitt, Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Hewitt and children, Elizabeth and Richard and Mrs. W. L. Dugan, of this city; Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Wagner and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Martin of Long Beach; Gilbert Wagner of San Francisco; Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Heaton and children, Shirley and Carl, Laguna Beach; Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Gulick, Capistrano; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Huntley, Pasadena; Mrs. Mary Burke, Hollister; Mrs. Barbara Pond and son, Elmer, of Muskogee, Okla.; Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Pond of Huntington Park; Mrs. Hattie Morris, of Kansas; and Mrs. L. Morris of South Pasadena.

Bridges Hall Offers Setting For Lovely Wedding Rites

Two of the most prominent young people of the community, Miss Elizabeth Herrington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter W. Herrington, of Orange, and Dr. Ralph Watson, young Santa Ana dentist, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Watson, of Orange, exchanged wedding vows yesterday afternoon at a charming ceremony in Bridges hall at Pomona college. The Rev. William E. Roberts, pastor of the West Adams Presbyterian church of Los Angeles, and formerly of this city, officiated.

The college chapel lends itself beautifully to such an occasion, and its rich velvet hangings formed a perfect background for the snowy tapers resting in torches and candelabra, and whose soft glow was intensified by the electric lights. An inspiring organ program took place, with Mrs. Herrington of Orange as the musician. He also accompanied Miss Pauline Thompson who sang "I Love You Truly" and Mrs. Vernon Glascock who sang "God Sent You to Me." With the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March, the bride party entered.

Perhaps no lovelier bride than Miss Herrington has spoken her vows in Bridges hall. Gowned in an exquisite white tulle dress, fashioned in Colonial style, and wearing a filmy veil caught to her hair with fragrant orange blossoms, she was truly a picture. Her bouquet was of gardenias and lilies of the valley. Miss Eleanor Herrington, her sister, was maid of honor, and was very attractive in an orchid satin frock with which she carried yellow sweet peas. Keller Watson Jr., a cousin to the bridegroom, attended as best man.

Mrs. Herrington and Mrs. Watson were each charmingly gowned, the former choosing heavy black crepe with which she wore a corsage of pink sweet peas, and Mrs. Watson, blue crepe de chine with which she wore a fragrant corsage.

Dr. and Mrs. Watson left immediately for a honeymoon trip to San Francisco. Mrs. Watson wearing a clever blue ensemble. On their return they will make their home on E. Washington avenue in this city.

Dr. Watson is a graduate of Orange high school, and of University of Southern California college of dentistry. His bride, too, was graduated from Orange high, and completed her education at Pomona college. During her last year in college she was accorded the honor of being chosen queen of the May Masque. For the past year she has been teaching at Katella school.

Orange Home Is Setting For Joyous Family Gathering

A Christmas day celebration in which regret and joy were mingled was that shared by relatives who gathered in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Pease in Orange. The family gathering is usually held with Mr. and Mrs. Henry Diers, 1115 North Main street, but as Mrs. Diers is convalescing from an illness she was unable to continue the long established custom this year. However, she was able to be present, and for this her family was indeed happy.

Another cause for joy was the fact that Arthur Pease, a son of the hosts who attends Oregon State college at Corvallis, was spending the holidays at home. Dinner was served at a prettily appointed table, lovely with scarlet carnations and slim tapers. An interesting social time was enjoyed, and the occasion proved to be a truly memorable one.

Those present, other than Mr. and Mrs. Pease and daughter, Barbara and son, Harvey, were Mr. and Mrs. Henry Diers, Mr. and Mrs. William Diers, Paul Gustlin, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Andrews, and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Diers Jr., of Los Angeles.

Sunday School Classes Are Combined For Gay Party

In planning to add to the holiday pleasures of the young men and women of their Sunday school classes, Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Mercereau arranged a joint party, which was held late last week in the attractive basement of the Ramona building, which Mr. Mercereau fitted up some time ago as clubrooms for the use of the two classes.

For the holidays, the rooms had been made doubly attractive with a canopy of tinsel and red ropes, from which depended scarlet bells and wreaths, while a large tree was swaying with its bright ornaments and lights.

An informal musical program featured the "Old Times quartet," composed of Messrs. Orlo Householder, Charlton Watson, Dwight Hayden and Hugh Osborn. This quartet sang at intervals during the evening, choosing as its final number, "Holy Night," just before the tree was denuded of its array of colorful packages. Little Colleen Randall, daughter of one of the class members, recited very nicely, and four-year-old Grace Jones was lifted to a chair from which she told the Christmas story in a most pleasing manner for such a tiny mite. Neal Gammett, with his violin, and Milford Dahl at the piano, offered a succession of carols and hymns suitable to the season.

One of the young men of Mr. Mercereau's class, Burton Rowley, appeared as Santa Claus, making a very genial and generous saint indeed, as he distributed the many gifts from the tree. Every person present received a present, as each one had brought one prettily wrapped for the exchange.

After an evening of gayety and Yuletide joys, Mr. and Mrs. Mercereau completed their delightful hospitality by serving ice cream and cake.

Job's Daughters Hold Joint Installation With Fullerton

Beautifully impressive was a ceremony of Friday evening when Santa Ana Bethel Job's Daughters and Fullerton Bethel held a joint installation in the Masonic temple in the latter city. Miss Lucille Bernann acted as installing queen for this city and Miss Marguerite Vicker for Fullerton. Both were very lovely in their white robes and carrying bouquets of yellow rosebuds and orchid sweet peas.

Other officers assisting Miss Bernann and Miss Vicker in the installation were Miss Gladys Holman, Fullerton, as guide; Miss Charlotte Taylor of this city, marshal; Miss Juliette Taylor of this city, chaplain; Mrs. Alexander of Fullerton, pianist; and Miss Bertha Paige of Fullerton, secretary. Each of the young women wore evening gowns in delicate hues, and wore corsages of sweet peas.

Santa Ana Daughters placed in office were Miss Elizabeth Smith, queen; Miss Harriet Morris, senior princess, and Miss Virginia Coogan, junior princess. Miss Edith Canfield was installed as Fullerton queen; Miss Lois Hershberger as senior princess, and Miss Hazel Smalley, junior princess. Each of the incoming queens carried roses, Miss Smith choosing yellow ones and Miss Canfield rich red blossoms. Each of the princesses carried orchid sweet peas.

Guardians were Mrs. Charles Cogan of this city and Mrs. William of Fullerton. A dance followed the installation, and attracted quite a crowd. Miss Bernann is outgoing queen of Santa Ana Bethel.

Kramer Family Circle Holds Gay Reunion

Another of the lovely family Christmas dinners held at Ketter's cafe was that of the Kramer family circle. Decorations were charmingly carried out in the prevailing colors of red and green.

Enjoying the dinner were Mr. and Mrs. M. Kramer, Mr. and Mrs. Burleigh of Orange, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Kramer and baby, Jerry, of Los Angeles, Mr. and Mrs. William Maag and Edwina, Marilyn and Billy and Dr. Charles Kramer and Frank Sullivan of Beverly Hills.

Eastern Star

Every one of the recently installed officers of Santa Ana chapter, O. E. S., appeared for the first meeting following installation, held last week in I. O. O. F. hall, with Mrs. Elizabeth Kloess and H. D. Meyer as worthy matron and patron.

During the course of the business meeting, a silver offering netted a goodly sum that later was used to brighten the holidays for the needy families of the city. This was the happy form taken by the chapter to replace the usual gift exchange. Miss Justine Goode was chairman for the evening, and supervised the attractively appointed table where refreshments were served.

Relief Corps

At the recent meeting of the W. R. C. there were 35 officers and members present. It was reported that 30 calls had been made on the sick and shut-in, and that five bouquets have been distributed. Relief work to the extent of $2 has been done.

Plans were made for the joint installation to be held January 14 at 1 p. m. with the G. A. R. in the Knights of Pythias hall. The names of Mary Ripple and Myrtle Short were voted on as members.

Midway City

The Los Amigos Card club met Friday evening at the home of Mrs. Charles A. Whitte, with Mrs. Hurst as co-hostess and 16 women were present to enjoy the Christmas party. In the dining room the table decorations were in the green and white with tall red candles and the red poinsettias and Christmas bells. "Bayberry" candles, the good luck candles of olden times, centered the table, and Mrs. Whitte gave the tradition of the candles while lighting them with the wish for good luck for her guests for 1931.

A delicious plum pudding was served at this Christmas party. Prizes at cards went to Mrs. Ray Schureman, who won a lovely combination of bath salts. Mrs. William Schmidt won as second prize a lace buffet set while Mrs. Moore for third prize won an orange reamer containing candies. Christmas candies were served at the card tables.

Those present at the party included Mrs. Glenn Wells, Mrs. E. L. Kirkham, Mrs. E. A. Holly, Mrs. Ruth Harlow, Mrs. Moore, Mrs. J. P. Ward, Mrs. D. Everett Hall, Mrs. Maurice Price, Mrs. Ray Schureman, Mrs. Elizabeth Wilson, Mrs. Zeigler, Mrs. S. A. Miller, Mrs. William Schmidt, Mrs. N. A. Nelson, Mrs. Hurst and Mrs. Whitte.

Unexpected Gift Adds To Yuletide Joy Of Goler

Santa Claus made a belated visit to Robert Swanke of Orange, when the young man was enjoying a golf game Christmas afternoon on the Chinese course at Hewes park. For as a member of a merry family party who celebrated a typical California Yuletide by enjoying the beautiful day in the open, Mr. Swanke made the lowest score that has ever been achieved on this course, playing it in 46 strokes when the par is 54.

As a result he was presented with the grand prize, a handsome pewter nut bowl, an unexpected gift indeed. There have been three players who have covered this popular course below par, but the Orange guest best the record of the other two players. There were many guests at the park and on the course on the holiday, so that there was an admiring gallery to watch the clever playing and the award of the grand prize.

Holiday Affair Honors Guests From Idaho

Honoring Mrs. Getty's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. James Young, who recently arrived here from Blackfoot, Idaho, Mr. and Mrs. William L. Getty were hosts Christmas day, entertaining in their home at 1126 West Pine street. Clusters of holly and poinsettias evidenced the Christmas motif, while a note of variety was found in the parti-colored sweet peas.

Those sharing the happy occasion with Mr. and Mrs. Getty and their daughter and son, Vera and James, were Mr. and Mrs. Dolf Johnson and Mr. and Mrs. George Kline of Los Angeles; Mr. and Mrs. William Bridges of Laguna Beach; Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hehn and sons, William and James, of Orange; Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Vaught and Mr. and Mrs. Ross McNeill, of this city, and the honor guests, Mr. and Mrs. James Young.

Hosts Greet Friends At Gala Event

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Kohler and sons, Harold and Floyd were hosts at a gala affair Christmas day when they entertained in their home at 1601 Willis street. Holiday greens were combined effectively with poinsettias and holly, and were used profusely throughout the rooms.

Of marked charm was the bouquet of narcissus which graced the sideboard laden with nuts, candies and dried fruits.

Covers were laid for twelve guests. Turkey was the main attraction during the dinner hour, and many toothsome delicacies accompanied the famous bird.

Those present, other than Mr. and Mrs. Kohler and sons, Harold and Floyd, were Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Warne and son, Donald, of Covina, Mr. and Mrs. L. N. Kohler and sons, Raymond and Lea, and Mrs. Lillian M. Harris of this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Wardlow Entertain Guests

One of the many happy family reunions was that which occurred in the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Wardlow, of 942 West Bishop street. A turkey dinner, a Christmas tree and gift exchange, games and music were enjoyed.

Those sharing the merry affair with the hosts were Mr. and Mrs. Ray Wardlow and children, Martha, Louise, Thelma, Mildred, Floyd and Lloyd, of Talbert; Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Burns, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wardlow and children, Donald, Vance and Gladys, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Hyton, all of Westminster; Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Wardlow, of Corona; Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Chepney, Mr. and Mrs. Carl DuRall and daughter, Eleanor, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver DuRall, and Mr. and Mrs. G. Huss, all of Santa Ana.

Gowmans Have Lovely Holiday Affair

One of the lovely gatherings held the past week was that with Mr. and Mrs. Arley Gowman as hosts in their home at 617 South Garnsey street. Holiday decorations prevailed, and a sumptuous dinner was served.

Among those present was a daughter of the home, Miss Dorothy Gowman, of Hollywood, and a friend, Charles Haddlett Jr., of the same city. Others sharing Mr. and Mrs. Gowman's hospitality were Mr. and Mrs. James Duby, of Windsor, Canada, now making their home in Los Angeles.

Sycamore Rebekahs

Sycamore Rebekah members, meeting in I. O. O. F. hall Saturday night, held the saddest session in their history, for it was their first without the genial presence and friendly personality of Mrs. Hattie Peters, whose sudden death on December 24 was such a shock to the community.

The lodge session was a mere formality, as no one had the heart to conduct any business except what was absolutely essential. Mrs. Peters' chair as right supporter to the noble grand, was left vacant, except for a great cluster of flowers. At the final services for Mrs. Peters, held that afternoon, representatives of other Rebekah groups, had said "You will want to be alone tonight," and as a result the Sycamores held their first meeting in many years as an intimate little group without a single visiting member.

The next meeting on Saturday night, January 10, will be installation of new officers, but plans were not made for the affair beyond a decision that it would be an open installation.

How To Install Order In Children

Instilling order into small children is perhaps the hardest task mothers have to face, but a task they must get through with, unless they wish to have their boy's or girl's future mate wonder what kind of a mother brought them up. I read somewhere recently of a plan used by one clever mother, and with the author's kind permission, I am going to give you her version of this plan.

In a home where there were several small children who just would leave coats lying where they dropped them, wet mittens in corners, a rubber here, its mate somewhere else, school books in spots they should not have been, nighties and bedroom slippers left littering the bathroom, and so on, all the host of articles careless children can leave lying around unless mother snaps them up. This mother had talked herself hoarse trying to impress order on her children, all to no avail. Her next step was to get a clean barrel, put it in a closet which she kept locked. The children were warned that anything left lying around would go into that barrel and would be returned to them after they had paid a fine for the article out of their weekly allowance. The plan worked like magic, 'tis said.

It seems to me that this same plan might be worked with any child who receives a weekly allowance, no matter how old the child is. It has been my experience that nothing sinks in faster than a punishment that costs the child part of his spending money.

TODAY'S RECIPE BAKED LIVER

2-pound piece of liver
2 onions, sliced
6 slices bacon
1 cup sour cream.

This recipe came to me from a friend whose son is suffering from anaemia, so liver is a frequent visitor at their table. Buy for this roast "young beef" liver. It is quite as good for roasting as the high priced calves' liver and costs less than half of its aristocratic cousin.

Buy the liver in one piece, wash in cold water to remove excess blood, then dip quickly into hot water to seal the juices; dredge with flour, salt and pepper, and put it into a casserole rubbed generously with butter. Slice the onions around and over the liver, lay the bacon strips over the top, and start cooking in a very hot oven for 10 minutes.

Add the cup of sour cream at this time, reduce the heat and finish baking—30 minutes will be about right. Baste the liver with the cream as the baking proceeds. If the bacon crisps too much take it off the liver and replace a minute before taking the roast from the oven.

This roast will serve four people. The individual calorie score is some 900 odd with many energy calories in evidence. No wonder it is prescribed for anaemia.

Be sure and send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for a copy of the current leaflet, offered free all this week. In this leaflet you will find one of the finest recipes for making Devil's Crab that I have ever eaten. I begged it for the Mixing Bowl and hope you will enjoy it as much as I did. Ask for Crab Meat Delicacies.

Have you ever wished that you knew exactly how to make the fluffy ornamental icing confectioners use on fancy cakes? Well, come to tomorrow's cooking lesson and the recipe will be yours.

Washington Guests Are Here After Lapse of Twenty Years

The holidays are being made especially enjoyable for Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Travis of 821 North Ross street, by the presence of interesting house-guests, Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Travis of Aberdeen, Wash., and Mrs. Elda Travis of Hoquiam, Wash., who arrived several days ago to spend Christmas week in this city.

Ivan Travis holds the important position as superintendent of schools in the state of Washington. This is his first visit to Santa Ana in 20 years, and he is deeply impressed with the growth made by the city since he last saw it, declaring that he would scarcely recognize it as the same Santa Ana.

On Christmas day, Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Travis and their guests enjoyed their holiday dinner amidst the pleasant setting of Ketter's cafe, devoting the afternoon to renewing old friendships.

Music Recital

A number of the city's music students Tuesday night received certificates for completing various terms at the Institute of Musical Education when a recital was held in the ballroom adjoining the Institute suite. The program was given under the direction of George Evans, violinist of this city.

Decorations in the hall evidenced the Christmas motif, and were carried out by the use of red cellophane lampshades and other appointments in the holiday colors. Especially well-received by the large and appreciative audience

ANNOUNCE ACTS FOR NEW YEAR JUBILEE HERE

Santa Ana's New Year eve party and jubilee to be held at the Fox Broadway theater, starting shortly before midnight on December 31, is to be one of the greatest shows of its kind ever held here, in the opinion of Norman Sprowl, Fox theater manager, who has arranged the program.

Tickets for the New Year's show are now on sale at the box office of the Fox Broadway theater and are being sold fast. It was said, All seats in the theater are being reserved and those who come early get their choice of seats, it was explained.

George Stinson, the "Singing Cop," will head the eight acts of vaudeville that will play at the theater prior to the showing of a late release big picture. Stinson is to give the "home folks" a "peep" at his voice for the first time in a local theater. He was loaned for the occasion through the courtesy of the Hollywood Concert company, with whom he is now connected since he stopped writing speed tickets on Orange county roads. His part of the entertainment is expected to be particularly good.

Other acts on the vaudeville list include, The Selmanoff Trio, burlesque adagio dancers; Apdala's Animal Circus which features monkeys; The Bimbos, table tumbler; George Wilson and Company, a unique piano act; Eddie and Al, dancers; and a line of seven Fanchon and Marco beauties in a series of snappy dances. Neil Abel, master of hokum, will be in charge of the show as master of ceremonies.

On the screen will be seen "Part Time Wife," starring Edmund Lowe and Lella Hyams. This will be the first time this picture has been shown anywhere in California and is a laugh fest from start to finish. The curtain at 11:30 for the show.

BARTHELMESS IN 'THE LASH' TODAY

Richard Barthelmess returns to Santa Ana today, this time in his latest all-talking picture, "The Lash." The picture will be shown at the Fox West Coast theater five days.

There are not many actors who have the appeal to the theater crowds as has Barthelmess and in his latest picture in which he plays the part of a dashing young Californian in the days just after the country had been ceded to the United States.

Barthelmess' latest production, recently exhibited, was "The Dawn Patrol," directed by Howard Hawks and authored by John Monk Saunders.

"The Lash" is a historical romance of early California and is based on the best-selling novel by the Bartlett. Barthelmess plays the dashing role of Don Francisco, Spanish gentleman turned bandit to combat his people's oppressors. It is the most romantic role in the Barthelmess repertoire and should please his fans. Marian Nixon plays the role of his sister, while important roles are played by Mary Astor, James Rennie, Fred Kohler, Arthur Stone, Robert Edeson and others. Thousands of extras take part in various scenes.

'RIVER'S END' OPENS AT BROADWAY TODAY

Escape into the desolate wilderness of the frozen North is sometimes worse than capture. Men go mad with loneliness in the boundless snowfields if they do not perish from the cold and hunger.

Into such a desperate setting the great drama of the Canadian North, "River's End," adapted for the screen by Warner Bros. from the novel of that name by James Oliver Curwood, and coming today to the Fox Broadway theater, plunges with the opening sequence.

It is a man hunt, the grim business of the Mounted Police, trained to get its man regardless of sacrifice or suffering, and to deliver him into the hands of an avenging justice. Few pictures have ever provided a more thrilling story. "River's End" never falters in the rush of its tremendous climax.

They called him El Puma... Men hated him... Women loved him... A Bandit the world remembers

He was willing to sacrifice himself for his people... but he was not strong enough to sacrifice the love of a woman.

THE TINYMITES
STORY BY MAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KNICK
REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

The painted dancer shortly stopped. He whirled around and slowly dropped down to the ground, while panting hard. "He's tired out," Clowny cried. "I feared he'd dance himself to death. Why, he can hardly catch his breath." And then the little fellow rushed up to the dancer's side.

"You want some water?" Clowny said. The dancer merely shook his head and mumbled several funny words that Clowny didn't know. The Travel Man said, "He's all right. They always dance with all their might. He'll rest a while and dance some more. Come on now, we'd best go!"

So, into town they promptly walked and of the various scenes they talked. "The town of Apis is quite a place," said Mister Travel Man. "You'll see some hunters on their way to hunt all through the night and day. If you are real good boys, I'll have you meet one, if I can."

Oh, gee! That's great!" one

Tiny cried. "Real hunting I have never tried. I wonder if we'll get a chance to go and shoot a gun? If it is safe and doesn't kick, I think that really would be slick."

"You bet," exclaimed the others. "It would be a heap of fun."

They walked out to the edge of town and found a path. They sauntered down about a mile and then they met a friendly hunter. He was glad to meet the Tinymites and said, "I'll show you some sights. I'll teach you how to throw a spear if you will follow me."

He reached a grass house, on the sand and grabbed a big spear in his hand. "You hold the spear like this," he said. "Then heave it through the air. Now watch real closely and you'll see that I'm as clever as can be." The way he heaved the mighty spear gave everyone a scare.

(The Tinymites hear about a lion hunt in the next story.)

RULES

1. In playing golf on the Missing Letter Links the object is to change one word to another in a given number of strokes which is par. For example, to go from TEE to PIN in three strokes sounds hard but isn't. TEE, TIE, PIE, PIN. It's probably more difficult on a real course.

2. Change but one letter at a time and be sure the word you have used is one in good usage.

3. The order of the letters cannot be changed.

Late News From Orange County Communities

Thousands Attracted Regatta At Newport Beach

MANY VISITORS AT RACES OVER WEEK END

NEWPORT BEACH, Dec. 29.—Yachtsmen and business men of this community believe Newport bay has taken another important step in its evolution from a small summer resort to an all-year, all-around city, following the three-day Christmas week regatta which ended yesterday.

Thousands of visitors during the three days, Friday, Saturday and Sunday, many of them from outside California, were agreeably surprised at the summery weather of late December, while the east, middle west and north are blanketed in snow and when yachtsmen don't even dream of their craft.

Another result of the regatta will probably be that more boats will be kept in commission here all the year. Certainly the weather during the three days of races was as good as at any other time of the year.

Scores of racing craft, both sailing and power, ranging from the 12-footers to cruisers capable of going around the globe, took part in the regatta, which will probably be made an annual affair. Many other yachtsmen and powerboat owners stated they were more spectators this year, but will compete a year hence.

Billy Lyon, now a resident of this community, son of former State Senator Charles W. Lyon of Los Angeles, added to his already formidable list of boat victories by winning the Patricia class event. He is only 15, but he defeated several veterans in the sailing sport.

Most of the prizes in the smaller classes went to members of the Balboa Island Yacht club, a Newport bay organization for skippers between six and 18. Jack Axelsson was first in the snowbirds; Louis Spielberger in the marlons; Al Newland, with his Comet, in the bay sloppers, and Richard Cole in the flappers.

Rear Commodore Sloan Plack of the California Yacht club on Saturday won the 50-nautical-mile power cruiser race from Wilmington to Newport Bay via Avalon with his 45-foot cruiser Christine II. in four hours, 22 minutes and two seconds.

PEGRIMS AND SOJOURNERS IN CHURCH TONIGHT

FULLERTON, Dec. 29.—"Scripture has always referred to God's people as Pilgrims and Sojourners," Rev. Francis E. Hawes told members of the First Baptist church of Fullerton yesterday morning when he used as a subject for his sermon, "Pilgrims and Sojourners." "A pilgrim is a traveler, a sojourner is a transient dweller," the Rev. Mr. Hawes explained. "Thus God's people are travelers moving toward the Celestial City."

"Forward" is the cry of everything that has life. It is the cry of nature. The acorn hursting from its prison cries out to the oak towering above it—Move on, make room for me! The cry of childhood to youth is "onward, onward, make way for us." The cry of youth to manhood and manhood to old age is the same. We must move forward.

Many Markers
"There are many markers along the highway to remind us of the forward journey. Birthdays, anniversaries and other events. The approach of the New Year reminds us that we are 'Pilgrims' and that we must move ahead toward our destination."

"All along the way we find men confessing that they are only transients. The cry of the Psalmist reflects the conviction of all thoughtful people—I am a stranger and a sojourner as all my fathers were. When a man comes to the place where he can and will make this confession his whole outlook on life will be changed. It is written of the pilgrims of old days—'These all died in faith, not having received the promises, but having seen them afar off—confessed that they were strangers and pilgrims on earth.' For this reason, Abraham who was held to such matchless promises, dwelt in tents, looking forward to the city whose builder and maker is God."

Path Is Narrow
"The Pilgrim's path is narrow. Mt. 7:13-14. Do not be discouraged at this fact. The great highways across the deserts are narrow. This makes it easier for the traveler. Channels across the ocean and airways through the heavens make it possible for one to travel with safety from one continent to another. The narrow path of the pilgrim is a blessing. Off the beaten path going is hard, progress is retarded."

"It is a path of increasing light and joy. But the path of the just is as the shining light, that shineth more and more unto the perfect day."—Pro. 4:18.

"Israel's enemies were of two kinds—the inhabitants of the land through which they passed, and their own doubts and unbelief. God drove out the first from before them. The second caused them to wander 40 years in the wilderness. The pilgrim today faces the same path—those people who are opposed to the church and religion, and their own doubts, lust and unbelief. The most dangerous of these foes are the 'lusts of the flesh.'—1 Pet. 2:11.

Pilgrims' Support
"God has not left us to make the journey alone. What would we think of a shepherd who would go searching for a lost sheep and when he found it leave it to make its own way to the fold? What would we think of the builder of a ship who would launch his ship out upon the great ocean and leave it to sail unaided and unguided into the desired haven? What would we think of a Saviour who would redeem a lost soul and then condemn it for wandering when left alone in the world? It is not so. The shepherd lays the sheep on his shoulder and carries it to the fold. The ship owner places ship in charge of capable crew. And Jesus will pilot safely to the eternal home."

GARDEN GROVE, Dec. 29.—The Beta Sigma class of the Methodist Sunday school will hold its monthly meeting and party Tuesday evening in the social parlors of the church.

Pilgrims' Friends
"There are those who run by his side. There are those who have run the race and reached the goal and now look on—Heb. 11:13 speaks of those 'who died in faith.' Heb. 12:1 declares we are compassed about with a great cloud of witnesses. Loved ones watch from battlements of heaven. They know what is going on. They are conscious of our struggles."

"This year has witnessed many bank failures. Up to November 1, 740 banks with deposits amounting to $312,000,000 had failed. Some people have suffered great losses because of the failures. It is therefore comforting to know that 'an inheritance incorruptible, and undefiled, and that fadeth not away, reserved in heaven for you' belongs to the pilgrim at the end of the way.—1 Pet. 1:4.

"There is much in our great cities to attract. There is also much to repel. The city to which the pilgrim is journeying is to be free from all things that offend.—Rev. 20:24-27.

BEACH PLANS DORY RACES AT EASTER TIME

NEWPORT BEACH, Dec. 29.—Two added attractions on the program of the Christmas week regatta, which ended here yesterday, proved so successful that it is planned to stage other such events during the year, probably in connection with the fourth annual collegiate carnival at Easter.

These were the fishermen's dory races, held at the Newport pier Saturday afternoon, and the swimming races at the Balboa pavilion yesterday. The dory races were the first held for years and the most successful affairs held in that part of the city for several seasons. Entries for the swimming races proved that natators can and do indulge in that sport here all the year around.

The winning crew in the fishermen's race consisted of Dick and Jack Johnston, who nosed out Kirk Brockett and Lou Sanders who landed second, by less than half a boat's length. The course was from the shore west of the Newport pier out to a buoy about half a mile off shore and return. L. Pangle and Bruce More took third prize, with Andy Brockett and Raymond Brockett fourth. Other entries were M. J. and Bernice Wyers, Roy Shafer and Nick Galvez, S. Gunther and C. R.

DISCOVERS WHAT OTHERS KNOW

The attention of those people who are insisting upon government control or ownership of the liquor business should be directed to the following dispatch:

LONDON, (O.R.) Dec. 27.—A grandmother, Mrs. Jennie McDermid, 60 years of age, went to jail today for six months on conviction of having "moonshine" liquor in her farmhouse.

She has been convicted twice of illegal manufacture of liquor.

As we recall in Canada there is no need of bootlegging. They can get the liquor pure and undefiled right from the government spigot.

In Cincinnati in the days of the liquor traffic, as well as many other large cities, it was well known that there were more speak-easies than there were regular saloons dispensing intoxicating liquor. This was not difficult to determine, for practically all people, whether they ran drug stores, saloons or speak-easies, paid the federal tax of $25.00, and hence it was well known that the illegitimate places that had no reason at all for existing outnumbered the legitimate places in many cities. In those days they feared the federal government more than the state.

Those who have really been following this fight against alcoholic poison for many decades are frequently amused over the supposedly learned treatises that now come from professors in colleges and others who imagine that they have discovered something simply because they personally have only arrived at the knowledge of it, when it was common knowledge to all informed people upon the question several decades ago. The remedies suggested, and which some magazine writers think worthy of printing, are often ridiculous. Apropos to this is one entitled "After Prohibition—What?" by Zechariah Chafee, Jr., who has been a professor of law at Harvard since 1919 and a frequent lecturer upon law at Columbia university. He proposes the following in lieu of the 18th Amendment: "Congress shall have power to regulate or prohibit the manufacture, sale, or transportation of intoxicating liquors within, the importation thereof into or the exportation thereof from the United States, and all territory subject to the jurisdiction thereof."

As an argument for this amendment, Mr. Chafee says: "It ought to have the support of the moderate 'drys' because they will still have nationwide prohibition if they can convince congress." Well, now isn't that nice? The truth is that congress is already convinced and they can do away with prohibition in this country as soon as the "wets" now convince congress. A majority in congress could repeal the Volstead act, the operative law which places in execution the Eighteenth Amendment, and if a majority of congress were convinced by the "wets" that prohibition was a mistake, they could repeal that act and the amendment would be non-operative. It is strange that a professor of law and a lecturer on Constitutional law is so blinded to the perfectly obvious.

A FORCED SITUATION

Big Bill Thompson has announced that he will be a candidate for Mayor again in the city of Chicago. One would hardly believe it possible that Chicago, in the midst of its dire need for a house-cleaning, would again elect such a mountebank as executive of its city government. But Thompson knows Chicago better than we do.

The truth is from the best one can learn, the underworld is powerful at all times, because it is particularly powerful at election. The officials owe their position to the support of the criminal element. With this true, one can never hope for a change.

Sometime ago at the suggestion that the Federal government should step in and take charge of the enforcement of law in our big cities, President Hoover pointed out that that was not the business of the Federal government. And it is not. Something might be done by putting some of our big cities under martial law, for it would appear that the power to convict has been lost. And if martial law were established the usual processes of our court procedure would be suspended. We might get better law enforcement that way, but by the same token that Alfonso Capone could be hurried to the executioner through this process, so could other men who came into conflict with the one in control. The big cities are presenting the problem. It seems to force us to a choice between liberty and law.

CALIFORNIA'S NEED

The California Constitutional committee appointed a year ago, has just made its report to Governor Young, and it proposes to submit to the people by the state legislature an amendment permitting the law makers at a later time to place before the voters a complete revision of the entire California constitution. The committee in part reports as follows:

Your commission is unanimously in the view that it needs revision. When it comes to the form of the constitution, we find that its constant amendment (196 times) has produced an instrument bad in form, inconsistent in many particulars, loaded with unnecessary detail, encumbered with provisions of no permanent value, and replete with matter which more properly might be contained in the statute law of the State.

There is nothing that California needs to a greater degree than it does a modern, workable Constitution. It is to be hoped that this will be worked out in harmony with the suggestion of the committee.

THE BUILDER OF A RUSSIAN CITY SPEAKS

The Austin Engineering Company of Cleveland is building a city to be known as Austingrad. The head of that company, Mr. J. W. Austin, spoke to the City Club of Cleveland last week on the work of his company in Russia; and those who had the privilege of hearing him got a picture of Russian enterprise such as we seldom get.

Here is a city which is to house 25,000 people, a tractor plant which is to furnish work for 5000 workers, and electrical plants, water plant, and all the other necessities of a modern city, springing up on an open plain some 35 miles out from Nijni-Novgorod. Mr. Austin stated that this city was being built up out of the resources of the country itself without the aid of foreign capital, and is being paid for as the work goes on. He said that Russia's credit was perfectly good, and that all bills were paid promptly through the Amtorg corporation in New York.

In the question period which followed he expressed his belief in the stability of the present regime, and praised most enthusiastically the brains that were behind the whole enterprise—an enterprise such as the world has never seen before. He recognized that there were very serious problems ahead for the Soviet government. The official who is to have charge of the whole city and its business was not indifferent to the greater problem of the operation of this huge plant, according to Mr. Austin, but he had no doubt as to the ultimate success of the whole Communist experiment in Russia. Surely, the world cannot be indifferent to what is going on in Russia as a man like Mr. Austin sees it.

NEW CENSUS OF UNEMPLOYMENT

It is with gratification that we note the plan of the Census Bureau to take a census of unemployment in 20 representative cities of the country. The enumeration is to begin on January 15. This will offer a comparison with the figures of the census of last April in those same cities.

The enumeration is to be made of those who have been laid off and those who are hunting after a job. This is the only method which will bring out the real situation. There has been so much dispute as to the number of the unemployed that it is high time that we know the real facts. With business down to 76.5 last week, the lowest since March, 1908, when the index was 75, which up to that date was the lowest record in our history, the situation cannot but be serious. That seriousness has been sensed by the leaders of the nation in politics and in business, and very wisely they are swelling the funds to tide over the victims of the depression during what promises to be the most serious winter within the remembrance of most of us.

Amending the Football Rules

New York Herald-Tribune

Now we must come around again to the question of the rules which govern the present-day game of intercollegiate football. We have maintained for a long time that one of the fundamental troubles can be found in the rules. Why is it, we wonder, that various colleges and universities are passing resolutions and holding debates over the game today? Grandstands were filled, receipts ran high, and yet only a blind and deaf man could fail to note a considerable degree of uncertainty and dissatisfaction.

They had big crowds and heavy receipts at Pennsylvania and at Yale and at several other places, where the notes of criticism rise highest. Have ballyhoo and big business failed as substitutes for sportsmanship, for the kind of fun an undergraduate seeks when he dashes off to the squash court or the soccer field, or for a job in the nipping air of a late autumn afternoon, or as he once had when he rushed from the drafting room and slipped into his football togs? The change from generation to generation is not nearly so complete as the photographs of the teams of 1905 and 1930 might indicate.

Holding that view of what we do, we suggest once more that football is a running, kicking and blocking game rather than an adaptation of basketball—an excellent game in its place. Football was "modified" to prevent injury to the players and to appeal to those who were not educated in its finer points. In our opinion neither of these reasons holds today. The game as it is now played exacts a heavy toll of casualties; whether or not the public can follow the play intelligently is of minor importance.

Why not return to fundamentals? First, let us put so heavy a penalty on the forward pass, which falls, that it will be used only as last resort. Now it is used by some coaches and teams as the chief offensive weapon—a sad reflection on the game.

Next let us move the cross-bar until it hangs directly over the goal-line and encourages the kicker to try a drop-kick or a goal from placement; the art is fast passing into oblivion. Next let us give youth a taste of what is in store for him. This can be done by cancelling the silly rule governing the fumble. We have no sympathy with the desire to protect the player from the chagrin that is supposed to last through life because he made a fumble that was converted into a touchdown by the opposing side. These few suggestions will not cure the evils of football, but they will help far along the road to recovery.

Those Borrowed Books Are Now Gone Forever

Pasadena Star-News

Hope sprang eternal when came the news that the Book Publishers' Research League has started a contest for a name to call people who borrow books and do not return them. We immediately sat down and wrote a sure fire winner, wrote it on asbestos and prepared to send it to the League at 730 Fifth Avenue, New York. But then, reading further, we find ourselves barred out. A contestant may submit only two words and our idea cannot be expressed in less than four or five. And, on second thought, they might make trouble with the Postoffice Department. So we shall just let somebody else win the fifty-volume prize, resign ourselves to losing forever the books that have been borrowed and continue the practice of keeping the shelves filled by keeping all the books that are loaned to us.

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

JUST GREED

(Entomologists have discovered that the real food of mosquitoes is the sap of plants.)

I know there must be regions where
Mosquitoes wing their flight
Through leagues of dank, swamp-scented air
Where dwells no man to bite.
I've viewed them often, at my door,
All buzzing in one key,
And wondered what they ate before
They made their meals on me.

When vainly on the screen they yearn
Beyond it to intrude,
Where do the little fellows turn
To find their needful food?
Would they roll over on their backs
With one last feeble "tweet,"
Or perish in their little tracks
Were there no men to eat?

No danger do they run of that;
Like beetles, slugs and ants
These hungry creatures can grow fat
Upon the sap of plants.
And when on this terrestrial sphere
No man is left alive
If vegetation still is here
The greedy bugs will thrive.

We cannot say, when sharp swift stings
Have cleft us, as with knives,
"They needed nourishment, poor things,
And we have saved their lives."
Quite wantonly our skins are rent
Through coat and vest and shirt;
The plants supply them nourishment,
They eat us for dessert!

Why Wait for Mussolini?

By WILLIAM TRUFANT FOSTER and WADDILL CATCHINGS

Suppose Mussolini maintained such a flow of income that his people always received enough money to buy the output of their growing industries. Then there could be no general overproduction; no general collapse of prices; no throngs of workers out of work.

There would be no reason, therefore, why wage-earners, as a body, or employers as a body, should ever want to curtail output. Then it really would be, and clearly would be, for the common good for everybody to keep on doing his best to make Italy more productive.

What a blessing that would be to each producer! He could go ahead confidently, needing only to guard against the overproduction of his OWN product. Business AS A WHOLE could not collapse, merely because it had become too prosperous.

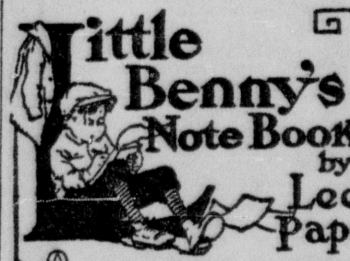

A producer of tires, for example, would not have a moment's worry over the rate at which OTHER commodities were springing forth from field and factory. All he would have to guard against would be the overproduction of tires.

Under such conditions, business would have no reason to object to the growth of imports. The flow of money to consumers would absorb all the imported goods, in addition to the domestic goods. It would then be just as blessed for a nation to receive as to give. Foreign trade would not have to be unbalanced, in order to be "favorable."

Then wage-earners would not be in trouble, because they had created more wealth than they were able to buy. They would never have to walk the streets, week after week, in search of jobs, merely because there were too many willing workers. More than that, their work would bring them what every worthy worker deserves—a steady increase in the rewards of labor.

But why wait for Mussolini to act? Why not lead the way ourselves?

Me and pop and ma was taking a ride in the Sparrow, pop driving and ma sitting alongside of him and me sitting on the back seat and pop sed, Yee gods Im pointed the wrong way in a narrow one way street, with the hardest boiled traffic cop in town at the other end. We're lost, abandon all hope, hall down the colors, he sed.

Dont be such a frayed cat, let me take the wheel, ma sed, and pop sed, with pleasure, and alacrity.

And him and ma changed places and we came to the end of the street and there was a fearsome wisle. Being the traffic cop holding up one hand mad for ma to stop. Wich she did, and he sed, Cant you read sines, youre going the wrong way.

Being a great big wide traffic cop with a red face, and ma sed, But my brother in law is a doctor.

Whats that got to do with it, theres no doctors sine on this car, the traffic cop sed, and ma sed, But my brother in law is a doctor.

Is this his car? the traffic cop sed, and ma sed, No, and the traffic fiek cop sed, Well is he in the car? and ma sed, No, and the traffic cop sed, Well then whats he doing in the argement?

Well you know very well that doctors have superior rites and extor privileges in the ritel per formants of their duties, ma sed, I often ride with him in his car and this mite of been one of the times just as well as now, and theres no use in holding up all these cars discussing it, she sed.

Go on, lady, Im too bizzzy to get a hed ake, keep going, the traffic cop sed.

Wich ma did, saying to pop, There, you see, all you need is a little tact, and pop saying, Maybe so, but I showed darn good judgment in letting you take the wheel.

Thoughts On Modern Life

MOTHER OF SOCIAL INVENTION

Necessity, as the ancient adage has it, is the mother of invention.

We have been a singularly fertile people in mechanical invention.

We have not been so fertile in social invention.

Otherwise we should never have suffered the sweeping economic depression that befell us.

At least depression would never have hit us by the grace—or the disgrace—or our own fault.

If we had only remembered early enough that no business can be financially sound unless it is socially sound, we should long since have produced social inventions—by which I mean policies and procedures—that would have gone far towards preventing economic depression.

(1) We should have remembered that our business and industrial system stands or falls by what it does to the consumer, and so we should have seen to it that the consumer had, as I have said so often, money with which to buy and leisure in which to use the output of our business and industrial system, and, above all, we should have watched with an eagle eye the unreality of the stock market that brought a collapse that scared the consumer into withholding from free play even the buying power that he has.

(2) We should have remembered that security of employment for the worker is just as important as security of investment for the employer, for 2,000,000 or 5,000,000 jobless workers mean that many less paying customers.

(3) We should have remembered that individualism is not a thing that can be left to run wild in a machine age, and we should long since have set about devising ways and means of prohibiting excessive investment in plants that will bring at least temporary overproduction. This would not be crushing individualism. It would be simply preventing individualism from crushing itself.

I am enormously interested in hearing important business and industrial leaders today advocating such measures when ten years ago they were passing them by as dangerously radical theories.

Some of the radicalisms of a decade ago are becoming the slogans of business and industrial leadership today, for they are seen to be essentially conservative measures that will prevent our business and industrial system from committing suicide.

Necessity is becoming the mother of social invention.

OUR CHILDREN

ANOTHER BOOK

"Oh, mother, look! Please get me a book."

"Why, child you have lots of books."

"Yes, I know, but I want another one."

A child who loves to read always wants another one. When it is possible he should have another one. Books are about the very best investment one can make for a child's recreational hour. The child of today must be trained to use leisure time profitably for it is becoming clearer every day that he is to have plenty of it. Books are one of the best uses to which such time can be put and the sooner the habit of reading is established and encouraged the better for everybody.

There are many fine books for children. The modern library offers the best of books for a dollar each. One has to be careful that the type is good, of the right size and clear, as poor printing and small type is not good for young eyes, and buy books the child likes from the list, which includes many of the masterpieces of the world.

Do you know The Little Library? It is a collection of lovely books for children. The books are small, clearly printed, and real.

I have just finished reading Nathaniel Hawthorne's tale, The Snow Image, a delightful thing that children will enjoy in the hour before or after dinner. I believe it would pay you to become acquainted with this series.

I am going to give my favorite little girl a copy of Robin and Tito. Of all the stories I have ever read about Italy and the children living or visiting there, I like this one best of all. I laid it down with loud cheers for the author Miss Robinson. The donkeys of southern Italy deserve a story all to themselves, and when you add to a perfectly charming specimen of this donkey an adorable little Sicilian girl and a daring sporty kind of a daring American girl, you have an unbeatable story of southern Italy. Even the bandits and the earthquakes and the blue grotto by the sea. You will have to read Robin and Tito for the little girl's other book, and let her brother or her "scout" borrow it. Any boy worth his salt will fall in love with Robin—and Blanca—and Tito the donkey.

If the older boy did not get a copy of Sons of Seven Cities as yet, let that be his other book. The seven cities are seven great American cities and the story told about each is a thrilling tale of adventure. I am a New Yorker so that may be the reason I think the story of New York is the best in the book. I imagine the boy who calls Philadelphia home will disagree with me, and so will all the other lads who live in the other cities. But they will all agree that this is a regular book. The copy we have in the school library is being replaced with a dozen and the worn veteran placed on the reserve shelf.

When you want to make a child happy buy him another book. He has some, of course, but he wants another. It is as cheap as candy by the pound and it will continue to nourish him throughout the years. Not that I would have you forget the candy. A book and a box of candy—now you're talking.

ANDREW JOHNSON'S BIRTH
On Dec. 29, 1808, Andrew Johnson, 17th president of the United States, was born in a crude shack at Raleigh, N. C.

When four years of age his father died. So poor was he that at 10 he was obliged to seek work. At 14 he was apprenticed to a tailor and he learned the alphabet from a fellow-workman. Johnson never went to school a single day in his life.

When 18, he moved to Greenville, Tenn., where he worked as a tailor. A year later he married Eliza McCardell, who taught him how to read and write. Johnson's enthusiasm for self-education led him to organize a debating society. Then, beginning a political career, he became successively mayor, state legislator, congressman, governor of Tennessee.

He was Lincoln's running mate in 1864, and succeeded to the presidency on Lincoln's assassination. In 1867 Johnson suspended Stanton, secretary of war, who was reinstated by the Senate the following year. An attempt to gain possession of the War Department during this quarrel led, in 1868, to Johnson's impeachment, but the two-thirds vote necessary to convict lacked one vote.

KNEW HER FAULTS

HUSBAND: Now that we are married, perhaps I might venture to point out a few of your little defects.

WIFE: Don't bother, dear. I'm quite aware of them. Those little defects prevented me from getting a much better man than you are.—Tit-Bits.
